When Captain Bellini, ardently wooing Ruth, the daughter of Baron von Scholley, proposed a dowry from her father, the former Burkhardt Brewing Company head asked for evidence of the captain's own financial responsibility. Whereupon, the dashing suitor executed a "fadeout."

THREATEN GARMENT STRIKE

3000 Local Workers May Quit Wednesday if 20 Per Cent. Pay Raise Is Refused

A strike of 3,000 garment workers employed in 150 shops in Greater Boston is threatened for Wednesday night unless they are granted a 20 per cent. increase in pay, better working conditions and an arbitration board for discussion of future differences.

This announcement was made today by Mayer Pearlstein of Cleveland, president of the International Waist and Dressmakers' Union, who was called here by officers of Local 49.

A meeting will be held Wednesday night at Tremont Temple, at which time the workers will be informed as to the results of a conference between union representatives and employes.

"Unless we get satisfaction by Wednesday a strike will be called immediately," said Mr. Pearlstein. "Working conditions are terrible.

"A large number of these shops are in crowded tenement houses in thickly populated sections of the city. Many of the workers slave away in their own homes, some only having a bedroom that serves for all purposes. We must have better working conditions."

Neither Mr. Pearlstein nor any of the union heads would disclose how far negotiations have gone along with the representatives of the employes.

BULLETINS

Rome.—Russia will not intervene in Germany with troops, "unless a bolshevist revolution breaks out, in which event the Soviet will assist the German reds," said a Moscow dispatch today quoting Russian officials.

Paris.—France today sent a note to Holland protesting the retention of German freight barges wanted in the occupied areas for coal, coke and iron shipments.

LEXINGTON SCHOOL CLOSED; NO COAL

The cold spell brought discomfort to thousands, but it resulted in the closing of the Hancock School in Lexington, which ran out of coal. The 800 pupils were dismissed for the day, which upset them a great deal, but they managed to bear up under it. They showed no great enthusiasm when they were told more coal was expected this afternoon and that the school would reopen tomorrow.

The official forecast:

GIRL'S PA BLOCKED BELLINI

Boston Baron Frowned on Adventurer's Suit; Orders Daughter Home

The beautiful and talented young Ruth Von Scholley, art student, has been summoned to return from Munich to her home in Brookline.

Orders to this effect were sent by her father, Baron Ferdinand Von Scholley, German Consul at Boston, a short time after Captain Umberto G. Bellini, Italian cavalry engineer, had been informed by the baron that the parental consent to a marriage between the soldier of fortune and the young painter would be withheld.

Bellini's publicity scheme in which a $500,000 Madonna painting by Leonardo da Vinci was "stolen" from the Brimmer street residence (which later developed to be a rooming house) has been a boomerang.

It unearthed a score of circumstances which point to the fact that Bellini is an intriguer of international scope whose range of activities included millionaire and restaurant keepers, noblewomen and chamoermaids.

CAPTAIN IS FOUND.

Captain Bellini, who for some reason or other has been keeping away from his lodgings at No. 4 Brimmer street, was finally found today at police headquarters.

He denied he had ever met Ruth von Scholley.

He denied he knew Baron von Scholley or had ever heard of him.

Then of a sudden he remembered.

"It is true," he said. "I did meet Mademoiselle von Scholley in Rome. A strong affection developed. I do not deny it. I did come to Boston with her paintings, as has been stated. I did meet her father, the baron. I do ask him for the hand of his daughter in marriage.

"It is not true, however, that the baron asked me to put $50,000 in trust. He asked for $60,000. It was not convenient for me at the time to produce that sum. The affair ended.

CALLS THEM "SCOUNDRELS."

Coue Makes Aged Cripple Walk at Sprightly Gait

New York, Jan. 29.—A man of eighty-five who had not walked for two years stepped at a sprightly gait across the stage of the Knickerbocker Theatre as Emile Coue cried at each step "faster, faster."

The patient has been crippled two years. He would not give his name, but said he would in a week if the cure proves to be permanent.

It was learned, however, that he formerly was a merchant and a personal friend of John Wanamaker.

DISPUTES TESTIMONY OF MURPHY

Dr. Holbrook of Sanitarium Declares Accused Slayer Was 'Sane and Well' at Fairview

Trial of Jesse Murphy for the tea store murders moved on so rapidly in Suffolk Superior Court today that counsel felt it might go to the jury tonight.

The defence closed its direct testimony with a minor question to Sergeant Murphy of the Boston police.

Rebuttal witnesses for the State followed. Dr. Holbrook of Fairview Sanitarium gave evidence tending to contradict Murphy's testimony that he got information at Fairview that helped him fix up the confession he later repudiated.

"SANE AND WELL MAN."

Murphy was a "sane and well man, in Dr. Holbrook's opinion, at the time he made the first confession to Walter C. (Dutch) Mahan, Boston newspaper reporter, and to Herby McGlinchey of Boston, whom Mur-

WARSHIPS RUSHED TO TURKEY

French Navy Active as British Dispatch Troops to Mosul Zone

Toulon, France, Jan. 29 (By International News Service).—Orders were received today for the French cruiser Strasbourg to proceed at once to the Near East. Flotillas of torpedo boats and submarines are being prepared for service in Turkish waters.

London, Jan. 29 (By the Associated Press).—In view of the Turkish attitude at Lausanne regarding the Mosul district the British military authorities in Irak have dispatched a battalion of troops and also a few airplanes to the area between Mosul and Sherghat (sixty-five miles south of Mosul).

Constantinople, Jan. 29. (By the Associated Press).—A secret session of the Angora Assembly, begun Sunday, lasted well into the night.

A Turkish newspaper dispatch from Angora says the Premier's declarations were far from reassuring for peace. The newspapers take on a deeper tone of gravity. The war that would allow a rupture would endanger all humanity, was the comment of one of the journals.

There has been a steady movement of British army material from shore to ships during the last few days. Otherwise no allied military activities have been observed.

Mosul Dispute Up to League Tomorrow

It was this article guaranteeing the territorial borders of the various member States) that kept the United States from joining.

The Mosul oil dispute will be discussed by the Council tomorrow.

Great Britain's interests in the Mosul oil fields are based upon two considerations:

First—That Mosul is a part of Mesopotamia (for which England was granted a mandate) and not a part of the Turkish State, as Angora claims.

Second—That the British have commercial concessions in Mosul

Predicts Germans Will Fight With "Bare Fists"

San Francisco, Jan. 29.—Six weeks more of France's aggressive policy in the Ruhr and then—chaos.

Germans, defenceless and starving, fighting the French troops with their bare fists, and the "outcast" nations of Europe and Asia closer than ever to a direct alliance with the Russian Bolsheviki.

This was the forecast of probable developments in Europe as made today by Raymond Robbins, internationally-known economist of Chicago, former head of the Red Cross in Russia.

EAST BOSTON FOLK COMPELLED TO WALK

A blow-out in the Lincoln street power house, the cause of which has not been determined, resulted in what was perhaps the biggest tie-up in street car service ever known to East Boston. From 8:15 until 9:30 today all but one line stopped running and commuters were compelled to walk in to the ferries. The Jeffries Point line, which is fed by the East Eagle power house, was unaffected.

SUICIDE IS HINTED BY FRIENDS

Advance Theory That Victim Ended Life to Provide for His Bride

From the honeymoon death of John J. White, wealthy young Boston business man, arises grim and increasing mystery.

There is mystery as to the cause of his death; mystery as to motives that may lie back of the tragedy.

Mr. White was stricken ill at Hotel Commodore, New York City, was brought back to Boston by his bride, formerly Miss Charlotta McGowan of No. 17 Centervale Park, Dorchester, and died in Peter Bent Brigham Hospital here thirteen days after his marriage.

Meanwhile the medical examiner and the hospital authorities refuse to tell the facts.

But Dr. John M. Kelly, family

MALDEN BOY IS BRUTALLY ATTACKED BY FIEND

With his body bleeding and torn and his clothing ripped away, seven-year-old Richard Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Wright of No. 21 Glenwood street, Malden, was found today unconscious in a snowbank, the victim of a fiend.

Boys taking a short cut through a Linden street coal yard were attracted to the huddled form lying in a pool of blood some hours after the attack.

Dr. Fritz W. Gay managed to revive the child sufficiently for him to sob his pitiful story. He then lapsed into unconsciousness and is in extremely serious state.

Little Richard was returning from visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Wright of No. 38 Florence street, Malden, near his home in the Glenwood section.

When he approached Mountain avenue bridge on Summer street, a well dressed man accosted him and took him by the hand and led him in another direction.

This was around 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The discovery of the body was not made until nearly 8 that night. Nearly an hour elapsed before the boy was given medical treatment.

The Malden police thus far have been unable to discover any person who saw the man and child together or any persons who noted a man answering the general description given by the boy.

BARON'S DAUGHTER, WOOED BY BELLINI, CALLED HOME BY FATHER

functory interest in me.

"The paintings that are in the police recall are genuine, as I said before. I will offer $600 in cash to anybody who will disprove one single one of the seven pictures. I have hundreds of other paintings. Some of my paintings are being held at the local customs office and at the New York customs office.

"I have paintings in all parts of Europe, and scores of masterpieces at my home in Rome. My paintings are worth millions. More than that they are priceless.

"I will not give any details of my affair with Mademoiselle von Schooley. My accusers are thieves, scoundrels. But I am a gentleman of the nobility.'"

STARTED WITH LOVE AFFAIR.

It was his love affair with Ruth Von Schelley which brought him to Boston, where he became involved in a number of deals, which have been and are now the subject of official survey.

The Baron von Schelley, recently appointed German consul in Boston, came to this country in 1902. He married the daughter of Gottlieb Burkhardt, founder of the Burkhardt Brewery, and became president and general manager of the concern.

Ruth von Schelley is one of the best known of the younger painters of Boston. At an exhibition of her work given shortly before she left Boston for Rome, several of her canvases attracted most favorable attention A' the School of the Museum of Fine Arts she took the Paige Scholarship.

Among the paintings exhibited at the Copley Gallery on Newbury street was a portrait of her father, the baron; one of Robert W. Nason, the attorney; one of Mrs. Bartlett Harwood and several other paintings of various subjects, including a nude canvas entitled "The Balloon Man," one called "Peter," and an impressionistic work called "Umbrellas."

MET HIM IN ROME.

It was in Rome that Ruth von Schelley encountered Bellini, who had traveled the world in quest of fortune. She did not know at first that he had been married and divorced at Fiume. She knew only that he was—he admitted it—a friend and confidante of Gabriele d'Annunzio.

She did not know, at first, that the handsome cavalryman was father of four children. Perhaps, if the former wife and the four offsprings had not visited, she might have married Bellini in Rome, the city of romance.

He spoke so entertainingly of his travels and adventures in Malay, China, Java, Sumatra, Vienna, Budapest and other cities and countries; he had such a fine, sympathetic knowledge of art; he could understand and appreciate her work.

Miss von Schelley had been trained to consult her father in every step she took. Captain Bellini informed her he was going to America on an industrial project which he assured her would "revolutionize the United States, if not the world." He had inventions, he said, which would make those given the world by Marconi.

OPPORTUNITY CAME.

Ruth had five paintings she had done in Rome. She wanted to send them to her father. Would Captain Bellini act as a courier? He would be charmed. And, of course, this would give him an opportunity to meet the baron under circumstances where the baron would, under ordinary rules of courtesy extend the hospitality of his home and introduce him around in Boston. It might help him along business lines.

Captain Bellini left Rome with the paintings. Ruth wrote to her father, told of her meeting with the captain, hinted that she liked and admired him, and ended by saying that possibly the captain might discuss a subject other than business with the baron.

From this point the recital may be taken up by Baron von Schelley himself.

"Captain Umberto Bellini," said the baron, in the reception hall of his handsome home at No. 19 Alton place, Brookline, "came to Boston about two years ago. He bore a letter from my daughter Ruth, who had met him in Rome.

ASKED DAUGHTER'S HAND.

"My daughter is studying in the Conservatory at Munich. She had painted five pictures, and wished to get them safely into my hands. She asked Captain Bellini to deliver them to me.

"I was given to understand there had been some sort of a romance in Rome. Bellini asked for the hand of my daughter in marriage.

"He was educated, handsome, personable and most presentable. He had many Italian war decorations. But I knew nothing of him other than what he told me and the brief bit my daughter had written about him.

"I asked him of his means. I suggested that before I could give any consideration to the matter of a marriage between him and my daughter that he put a small sum in trust as an evidence of his responsibility and good faith. The captain was living at the Copley-Plaza.

"He found it difficult to speak in terms of less than a million. I mentioned $50,000 as a tentative sum, thinking it would be for him a mere drop in the bucket.

SPOKE OF DOWRY.

"He said that at the moment he could not put his hands on such a man. I decided he was not eligible. When he began to speak of the amount of the dowry I intended to settle upon my daughter I informed him that I would not consent to the match.

"Suddenly Captain Bellini left the Copley-Plaza. I might say he left precipitately. But before he left he brought me several paintings. One of them was a madonna with two children. This one, he told me, was an original da Vinci. Another was a madonna and two saints.

"This, too, he said, was a masterpiece, a genuine old master. A third I recall was 'Adoration of the Magi.' He impressed upon me the worth of the paintings. He did not wish to trust these treasures to a room in a hotel. Would I keep them for him for a short time? In consideration of the courtesy he had extended in bringing me the paintings of my daughter, I decided I would do this for him.

HINTED AT THINGS.

"He told me he had smuggled the paintings into Boston. He hinted at strange and romantic circumstances under which he had come into possession of the paintings. It occurred to me it was a dangerous thing to have the paintings in my possession. I asked him to remove them. He did so, and I heard no more from him until I read in the papers of the theft of his $540,000 wrath of old masters."

At the time of the theft of the pictures Captain Bellini disappeared. Among those who are interested in his return are:

INVESTORS ANXIOUS.

Several score of Italian investors of the North End.

The Boston police.

IS UNDESIRABLE SUITOR.

Baron von Schelley wishes to inform him flatly and forever that he will not change his mind in the matter of the captain's suit for the hand of his daughter. He has told him once before that he did not think such a marriage would be advisable. Now the baron knows it.

Ruth von Schelley, if she finds out where Captain Bellini is, will undoubtedly write and advise him that her parents have forbidden her to consider his suit.

The well known financier will assure Bellini that there is no possible chance now to interest him in Bellini's project for the manufacture of coal from garbage.

OWES THREE MONTHS' RENT.

Mr. Madden merely wishes to collect three months' rent for the apartment rented at the Brimmer street address by Captain Bellini.

The Italian investors of the North End are curious to get verification of the claim that an investment of $1,000 in the Damiano Company, of which Captain Bellini is president, will return a profit of $3,000 within three months, as assured, thus paying the most beetle promise ever made by Charles Ponzi.

The Massachusetts avenue restaurant keeper is anxious to collect a bill of $16 for victuals bought on tap by the much-decorated Italian soldier of fortune.

Mr. Damiano would probably inquire why Captain Bellini chose this particular time to let him hold the bag on the corporation started to exploit Captain Bellini's invention to lure power out of the ocean.

And last—but ah, not least—the simple Boston police are interested because they spent many beetle hours looking for stolen masterpieces which turned out to be fakes.

Never Was Bootblack, Declares Damiano

Dominico Damiano, inventor of a new scheme of harnessing the tides, wants it emphatically understood that, at no time in his life, did he shine shoes, either for a living or for fun.

Furthermore, Dominico Damiano wants it known that he is not treasurer of the Damiano Tide & Stream Power Company of Boston. He is vice-president.

And lastly, Dominico Damiano wants it known that he never advised investors in his company that they would make a few hundred per cent. profit on their money inside of three months. He simply said, "Invest, and take your chances."

"Never did I work as a bootblack," he declared today. "I always worked as a die setter and engineer. I worked for the Jim Sand & Steel Company of Everett; the Peter Gray Steel Manufacturing Company of Cambridge, General Electric at Lynn, Freeman Tin Company of Portland street. But a bootblack, never.

"I never told anyone that they would make big profits by investing in my company. I told them all I expected the invention to be successful and that they would profit according to that success.

"It is true the Damiano Tide Water Company (the first name chosen) was ordered to stop operations in 1922. But, then my patent was only pending. As for being stopped for advertising wrongly, it was the fault of the newspapers in putting things into my advertisements that I didn't order. Yes, the newspapers were to blame for that.

Damiano said he was not an American citizen, and that he did not serve in any military force during the war.

He said he met Bellini in 1922, and that, as the latter was a hydraulic engineer, he made him head of the company.

Turks at Lausanne Say Crisis Is Near

Lausanne, Jan. 29 (By the Associated Press).—A draft of the treaty to be submitted to the Turks on Wednesday was distributed to all delegations today.

The Turkish representatives said the situation was so critical they would make no statement, although the one of the strongest expressions in hope that the speeches brought out by the presentation of the draft in the conference Wednesday would be of such a nature a rupture would be avoided.

The spokesman of the Russian delegation, when shown a Belgrade report asserting Turkey and Russia would give each other mutual military support in the event of a resumption of hostilities, declared the report was an invention.

M. Stancioff, the Bulgarian minister to Great Britain, added to this denial by declaring untrue the report that Bulgaria and Russia had reached an agreement under which Russian troops would be permitted to cross Bulgaria into western Thrace as an aid to Turkey should hostilities be resumed. The minister added that Bulgaria had had no negotiations whatsoever with Russia on this subject.

CAPTAIN COYNE SHOT DEAD IN AMBUSH

Dublin, Jan. 29 (By the Associated Press).—Captain Coyne of the National Army was shot dead and three soldiers were wounded when a party of troops was ambushed by Republicans between Abbeyfeale and Broana, on the Limerick-Kerry border.

The attacking party is said to have left the captain's body at the roadside, stripped of all clothing.

At about the same time a party of eight soldiers was ambushed at Castlemaine, County Kerry, but reinforcements arrived and the Republicans were scattered with a loss of one killed and several wounded.

FACTS HIDDEN IN DEATH OF BRIDEGROOM

The bride's family first talked of pneumonia. Dr. Kelly saw no symptoms of pneumonia or of mercurial poisoning either.

The hospital authorities, however, did not think spinal tuberculosis was the malady. Poison was suspected and the medical examiner was called in.

Neighbors who knew White have raised a startling theory of supreme self sacrifice on White's part. They say he loved Miss McGowan devotedly and wished to be sure of providing for her for life. But he realized he had spinal tuberculosis, which would end his life.

His desperate plan, to make sure his fiancee would inherit his considerable estate, in the opinion of some of these neighbors, was to make her his wife, then end his physical and earthly troubles by the mercury route.

"UNDER INVESIGATION."

She also thought for a while that his illness was caused by liquor which he obtained in New York from some source which she did not know.

Meanwhile the present status of the mystery is summed up in the brief annotation on the death report filed at City Hall: "Death under investigation. George Burgess Magrath, Medical Examiner."

John J. White, member of the John J. White Hay & Grain Company of No. 102 A street, South Boston, lived with his brother, Thomas F. White, treasurer of the company, at the latter's home at No. 4 Hawthorne street, Milton.

He and Miss McGowan were married at St. Ambrose's Church in Dorchester January 10 and departed, honeymooning, to Manhattan and the Hotel Commodore.

Six days later the bridegroom was stricken. They returned to the bride's home in Dorchester. Dr. Kelly was called in. The physician thought that the patient's trouble, spinal tuberculosis, had returned and had become acute. January 18 he directed that Mr. White be removed to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

WIDOW NEAR COLLAPSE.

Five days later White died. Symptoms had developed which, before the patient expired, made the hospital authorities suspect poison.

The medical examiner removed organs for analysis, then permitted burial of the body. Then came the analysis report of at least four tablets of bichloride of mercury.

Members of Mrs. White's family, who first declared death due to pneumonia, now admit the mercurial poisoning, but declare that it was accidental.

The girl-widow, in condition of hysterical collapse, has made no statement beyond the one of her husband going for medicine, as she thought, and her first belief that he must have been made ill by liquor.

Thomas White, the dead man's brother, is quoted as saying that he "never heard of such a thing" as mercury in the young man's body.

TESTIMONY OF MURPHY IS DISPUTED

Murphy, according to Dr. Holbrook, was likewise sane and well, when he made detailed confession to Major Thomas Walsh, counsel for the Rollins boys.

This form of throaty expression is said, in the underworld, to be a sign of utter disapproval, meaning that the person toward whom it is directed is "not right."

MAJOR WALSH'S DENIAL.

Then Major Walsh, brother of United States Senator David I. Walsh, took the stand for first time in this trial. He denied emphatically having coached Murphy in the confession in any way, having given him any money or even having promised him a pardon.

Major Walsh said his brother, the Senator, was interested in the case only as a matter of justice.

Then Herby McGlinchey took the stand in rebuttal for the State and Jesse Murphy laughed sardonically.

When McGlinchey, testifying to occupation, assured Assistant District Attorney Henry P. Fielding that he was a sub-foreman in the sewer department, Murphy leaned over to his counsel, William R. Scharton, and said:

"Sewer department—that's where he belongs."

SAW MURPHY FOUR TIMES.

McGlinchey testified to seeing Murphy in Boston the noon of February 17, 1917—the noonday before the night of the Foley murder—to seeing Murphy in Howard street at 12:30 that murder night and to leaving him at the Lancaster Club at 2:30 in the morning and to seeing him at Hotel Rexford the next afternoon.

This was against Murphy's statement on the stand that he left Boston the noon of February 17, was not in town the murder night or the next day.

Dr. Clark Holbrook of the State Hospital for Insane at Fairview, Pa., was called to rebut Murphy's statement that he was given information at Fairview on the tea store murders which helped him frame the confession.

Dr. Holbrook denied Murphy gained any such information at Fairview. He was present when Mahan and McGlinchey talked with Murphy, when Murphy signed the "I Killed Foley" statement. Neither Mahan nor McGlinchey, in Dr. Holbrook's opinion, gave Murphy any information.

Major Walsh was questioned by Mr. Fielding:

"Did you ever at any time give Murphy any money?"

CABLE BRIEFS

Rome, (By Associated Press).—Pope Pius has authorized Archbishop Fumasoni-Biondi, newly appointed apostolic delegate in Washington, to postpone his departure for the United States until February 17, owing to the grave condition of his father.

"Did you promise Murphy a pardon?"

"Was Murphy supplied with any information as to the tea store murders at the time he made his statement to you?"

"Did Murphy use any memoranda or did you see him using any newspaper clippings at any time?"

"No," replied Dr. Holbrook to each question.

Cross-examination by Attorney Scharton:

Q.—You talked to District-Attorney O'Brien and Mr. Fielding on the case? A.—To Mr. Fielding.

Q.—As a matter of fact, when Mr. O'Brien was made district-attorney, after the removal of Mr. Pelletier, you renewed your fight in behalf of the Rollins boys? A.—Yes.

Q.—Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Fielding were playing right into your hands, weren't they? A.—I wouldn't say that.

Q.—Well, you wanted Murphy back here to testify for you in your motions for a new trial? A.—Yes.

Q.—You know you couldn't get him back except through a pardon? A.—Yes.

"You interested your brother, United States Senator Walsh, in the case. A.—The Senator was not interested except as a matter of justice. I asked him to see Murphy and see what he thought of him.

When Herby McClinchey was called to the stand Murphy began to smile and when McGlinchey told his occupation Murphy's smile broke into a laugh with his sole comment to his counsel.

"Did you see Murphy in town the day of the Foley murder, February 17, 1917?" asked Fielding.

McGlinery began: "Yes. I saw him at noon on Howard street. He asked me—"

Attorney Scharton was up with instant objection.

Springfield, Jan. 29.—Edward Pynchon, sixty-six, chairman of the board of directors of the Chicopee National Bank, died today. He was a direct descendant of William Pynchon, one of the founders of Springfield.

SWINGS CRUTCH AT KING GEORGE AT STATION

London, Jan. 29 (By International News Service).—A former British soldier, suffering from shell shock, attempted to attack King George with his crutch at the St. Pancras railroad station today. The ex-soldier was arrested.

As the royal couple were passing through the railway station, acknowledging the cheers of onlookers, an ex-service man hobbled forward upon crutches. It has been the custom to allow crippled soldiers to approach the King.

As he drew near the soldier swung a crutch to strike the King, but he was seized by policemen and hurried off to a police station. At the station the prisoner appeared to be suffering from mental trouble. He was removed to a sanitarium.

The police say that he has been responsible for other disturbances.

It is understood that Queen Mary desired to return to London so as to be near her daughter, Viscountess Lascelles, in whose household an interesting event is expected shortly.

A War Without Men
Astor's Flying Company
Sad Religious Discussion
Was Mohammed Moral?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

HAVE YOU real estate in New York city, Chicago, on the Pacific Coast, anywhere within reach of foreign foe? General Patrick, head of our army air force, tells his officers that New York could be bombed and destroyed by flying machines directed by radio, without pilots. Thus an enemy from across the ocean might destroy great cities here without risking one single life. That is "scientific war" with a vengeance.

WHAT THIS country needs above all things is complete development of flying machines, knowledge and construction, on the biggest scale. One rich young gentleman, Vincent Astor, sets a good example, organizing a flying boat service from New York to Newport. The journey will be made in ninety minutes for $30: quick and not dear. This particular service will be used by those that might as well travel slowly. But it will encourage airship building, and that is needed.

A BERLIN company, as soon as permission is given, will begin regular air service by Zeppelin between Berlin and New York, the trip to take fifty-six hours. The thing actually can and probably will be done. The Germans should be allowed to make the experiment if they are the first able to carry it out. Before the century ends, travel on the surface of the water will be as much out of date as a trip across the plains by ox cart.

Meanwhile, the government should take the lead in flying—for postoffice and passenger use in peace, for defence in war.

CHURCH CIRCLES await the outcome of a discussion between the Episcopalian bishop in New York and one of his clergy, Dr. Grant. Dr. Grant doesn't believe Christ descended into hell, a terrible hole in the centre of the earth. He doesn't believe that Christ had the power of God while on earth, saying that he prayed frequently, and "God would not pray to God."

DR. GRANT'S vestrymen are reported to be with him. It is expected the bishop will put Dr. Grant out of the church if he can. Such discussion and changes in belief are not new. Once the Christian religion taught that the earth stood still, while sun and moon whirled around it. Also that the earth was the centre of everything, the stars, which we now know to be gigantic suns, millions of times bigger than our earth, being created to light us at night. Men were buried alive for teaching scientific truths, now universally accepted. A wise religion adapts itself to new discoveries and is slow to make an issue.

AN ENGLISH court finally decides that a man can't leave his money to teach mediums how to bring down spirits, because it's against the public benefit. The majority will agree, but the decision may provide dangerous precedent. Could a man leave money to the Mohammedan Church, which teaches that if you kill enemies of Allah and his prophet you are transported immediately to a paradise, where wine and young ladies are supplied, free of charge, through all eternity? Is that moral?

THE ALLIES, England not agreeing, have declared

"MY SHARLIE"; "YES, WE ARE ENGAGED"

POLA NEGRI AND CHARLIE CHAPLIN

The oft reported engagement of the two screen favorites is confirmed by the pair setting at rest, among others, the story of their recent marriage.

Del Monte, Cal., Jan. 29.—This time it's definite, positive, authentic, authoritative and final.

Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin of Hollywood, now and then employed in the film industry, announces his engagement to Miss Pola Negri, once of Germany, now of Del Monte, and similarly employed.

A little after daylight a train stopped at Del Monte Junction long enough for a lone passenger to alight. Cautiously he hailed a waiting flivver, murmured, "Pebble Beach Lodge," and sped away.

ON THE TRAIL.

But not without a pack of enterprising newspaper men on his trail. They had had a mysterious warning that such a thing might happen. Could it have been a press agent? No, the thought is unworthy.

Anyhow, the trailers got to the lodge just in time to see the fair Pola rush from the veranda and into the arms of the flivvered passenger.

"My Sharlie," she cried, "why not you no come sooner?"

"I've ben very busy, darling," replied Charlie. Then turning and discovering the audience, he registered surprise, embarrassment and confusion, and fled with Pola into the lodge.

His s., e. and c., however, were not so great as to prevent this parting remark:

"Don't go away, fellows. I'll have a formal statement to make at noon."

NO DATE SET.

"Well, boys, we are engaged. Aren't we, Pola?" A blush.

"Yes, my Sharlie." Another blush.

"When is the wedding?" asked the audience.

"No date has been set. Has there, Pola?"

"Soon?"

"Really, we don't know. Do we, Pola?"

"No, my Sharlie." It was really remarkable team work.

"Yes, we are very happy—very happy, indeed. Aren't"—

"Yes, my Sharlie."

"And now, fellows, you must excuse me. "Mus"—

"Yes, my Sharlie."

Cut!

Sharlie went back to Hollywood tonight. He was adamant about announcing the wedding date. You can't blame him. That, as Kipling and the press agents say, is another story.

Reid's Widow in Movie

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 29.—Dorothy Davenport Reid, actress and widow of Wally Reid, motion picture star, who died a short time ago in a battle with the drug evil, today will sign an agreement to take the leading part in a great anti-narcotic moving picture drama.

ROAD ROLLER IN DOORLESS SHED; HOW COME?

Fall River, Jan. 29.—Mayor Edmond F. Talbot came upon a shed on the Reservoir reservation. It housed a road roller bought two years ago.

The Mayor couldn't get inside the shed. It had no door. Now the Mayor demands to know:

"Why build a shed without a door? How does the roller roll out when needed? Do you have to tear down the shed to get the roller out? If they don't need to get the roller out, why have a roller anyhow? Who designed the doorless shed and why?

The Mayor found sheep on the reservation. He was told they graze on brush and lessen forest fire hazard. Three men used to patrol the reservation to watch for fires. The Mayor inferred that the sheep saved hiring men for fire patrol duty. But now he learns that the men are still on the payroll. What do they do? They watch the sheep.

Once the Mayor noticed fine turkeys on the reservation. Since Christmas they have disappeared. The city is not selling turkeys, says the Mayor, so they couldn't have been sold. Perhaps some were given away. "But none came my way," says the Mayor.

GREAT CHEMICAL PLANT FOR FORD

Iron Mountain, Mich., Jan. 29.—Henry Ford will build the largest chemical plant in the world here, it was announced today by E. L. Pearce, who has been awarded a contract for construction materials.

Ford recently made a visit here to inspect his sawmill and body plant and to make plans for the building of the chemical plant.

The new Ford plant will exceed in size the Cleveland-Cliffs Company Chemical Plant at Marquette, now said to be the largest in the world.

LYNN COUPLE HELD FOR ATTACKING COP

Frank Laurino of Suffolk street, Lynn, and his wife, Josephine, were held in $200 bail each in Lynn Court today on a charge of assaulting Patrolman Anton Dyczius of the liquor squad when he went to their home in search of hootch. Both pleaded not guilty and a hearing has been set for Thursday. According to the police, Dyczius discovered a small quantity of wine in the couple's home and placed the husband under arrest. The wife became excited and punched the officer in the face.

200,000 IDLE IN GERMANY AS MILLS CLOSE

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, Jan. 29.—There are approximately 200,000 German men and women workers idle today in the Rhineland and Ruhr as the result of strikes or shutdowns due to fuel shortage and paralysis of rail and water transportation, said a dispatch from Essen. French military guards have been established over all railways lead'ng out of the Ruhr as the result of train wrecking attempts.

Dusseldorf, Jan. 29. (By the Associated Press).—The French occupation officials turned attention today to extending control of the Ruhr railway lines, hampered by refusal of the German workmen to take orders from the French.

The rail strike is complete in Coblenz, but two battalions of French engineers have taken over the lines and placed heavy guards at important points. The workers have served notice that they will not resume their jobs while French troops are present. There is no communication between this city and Duisburg and Essen.

The Ruhr has been taken over so completely that today the city of Dortmund was the only open avenue of communication with the rest of Germany. The closing of that entrance, it is expected, will be followed by the usual strike of the workmen.

Burgomaster Schmidt, Chief of Police Oexle and five other city officials of Dusseldorf have taken up their residence in Elberfield. Arrested Friday as a result of Thursday's disturbances, the men were escorted out of the occupied zone yesterday. Altogether it is estimated 100 German officials in the Ruhr have been expelled.

ILLINOIS DRY AGENTS IN EXTORTION PLOT

Chicago, Jan. 29.—John E. Earley, chief prohibition agent for Illinois, today had evidence regarding alleged extortion plots practised throughout Illinois, which he said he would present to Commissioner Haynes at Washington. The alleged confession was reported to have been made by Edward J. Hendrick, a former federal prohibition agent, and to have involved one group chief, a number of agents and a Chicago brewery.

SHERIFF'S POSSE IS ATTACKED

Indiana Whites Open Fire as Officials Seek Assailants of Negro Residents

Blanford, Ind., Jan. 29.—Two unidentified men were shot to death and Sheriff Harry Newland and an unidentified man were wounded in a riot here today resulting from an investigation of race troubles.

Acting on a report that persons had fired at two negroes, proprietors of a store here, Sheriff Newland gathered a large force of deputies and visited the section near the store.

The officials entered a dance hall where a celebration was in progress by a crowd of people, mostly foreigners, and the celebrators set upon them.

In the fight shooting became general. Two of the dance hall patrons were shot to death by the deputies and another seriously wounded. Sheriff Newland received a bullet wound in the shoulder.

A call for help has been sent to officials of neighboring towns. Prosecuting Attorney W. A. Satterlee is expected from Clinton in time for the coroner's investigation and probably will take charge.

It could not be learned whether any additional action regarding the local situation was contemplated by Governor McCray. The Governor last week ordered officials of the National Guard to investigate the race trouble here when all negroes were ordered to leave town by the white residents.

The negroes fired upon were two of the few who refused to leave. The race trouble is said to have been a result of an attack on a white girl.

WOULD TRAIN BOYS FOR BUILDING TRADES

The need of injection of young blood in the building trades is being stressed by John F. Walsh, secretary of the Building Trades Employers' Association, who advocates several public schools here to teach masonry and kindred trades. Bricklaying, plastering, tile-setting and the like is not being taught at the Boston Trades School and no provision is being made to train young men in these trades, with the result that annually there is a shortage in Boston.

9 HURT AS BLAST SHAKES CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Nine men were scalded and hundreds of families thrown into fright by a terrific explosion early today in the plant of the Chicago By-products Coke Company. Three of the injured may die.

An illuminating gas generator tank blew up. Gas and smoke and steam enveloped the district for blocks.

Buildings trembled for a mile around and many windows were broken, while people, fearing an earthquake, ran into the icy streets.

The building, 300 feet by 150 feet, in which the blast occurred, was damaged from $10,000 to $15,000. Twenty men at work there were flung in all directions by the concussion.

The blowing out of a gasket was believed to have caused the blast.

RAILROADS BLAMED FOR COAL SHORTAGE

The railroads are to blame for the coal shortage, in the opinion of James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, who spoke in Boston. Shortage of motor power had tied up production and sidetracked thousands of coal cars, he said.

Bullets Menace His Home

TIMOTHY HEALY

Dublin, Jan. 29.—A midnight attack was made on the residence of Governor General Timothy Healy in Phoenix Park by Republicans. Long distance snipers poured a hail of lead on the guard around the Healy home.

The Free State forces turned out quickly and dispersed the attackers. There were no casualties among the Free Staters.

At the same time another attack was made on Marlborough barracks, occupied by the police and a detachment of troops. The irregulars were promptly routed.

Patrick Cahill, irregular commandant in County Kerry, and several of his men were captured in the Slieve Mich mountains near Tralee. The irregular forces were located by a Free State aeroplane.

GIRLS IN PANIC; FIRE-TRAPPED IN DANCE HALL

Hoboken, N. J., Jan. 29 (By International News Service).—Frantic with fright, their eyes blinded by smoke, 100 girls stood screaming at the front windows of a dance hall on the second floor early today when they were trapped by a blaze which started on the first floor.

Many of them were prevented from jumping only by the strenuous efforts of their escorts.

Four hundred men and women were in the hall when the first wisp of smoke curled its way up the stairs.

All but 100 were able to leave by the exits before dense smoke barred the way.

The remainder, clad in flimsy ball gowns, fought to get to the windows until employes of the place secured ladders and aided them to the street.

Shortly after the last of the dancers had been lead to safety flames burst through the ceiling and into the dance hall.

FIREMEN STALLED IN SKYSCRAPER LIFT

New York, Jan. 29.—A score of firemen, rushing to fight a blaze on the twenty-seventh floor of the thirty-one-story Whitehall Building at the Battery, were stalled in two of the skyscraper's elevators today and forced to smash doors to make their escape from the shaft. The fire was confined to three offices.

One of the elevator cars was stalled between the twentieth and twenty-first floors and the other between the sixteenth and seventeenth.

STATE SWINDLED BY FRAUDULENT CLAIMS ON RELIEF FUND

"Soldiers" who never heard a bugle, "typewriting sailors" who hazarded several "sea trips" on an East Boston ferryboat, and hundreds of veterans who never left their native heaths are included in a huge conspiracy to defraud the government of millions, according to information received by the Boston American.

Reports of this startling swindle have come in the wake of reports from the charges of "graft" by John H. Dunn, Boston soldiers' relief commissioner.

LAWYER IS ACCUSED.

The conspiracy is country-wide, but has thrived in Boston, according to reports, which say that the first "chapter," so to speak, of this vast fraternity of fraud, had its embryo in the agile mind of a State street lawyer. The swindle has been perpetrated, it is charged, through the medium of the Federal vocational service and the disabilities renumeration.

The State street lawyer mentioned is said to have done a business of nearly $100,000, with the end not yet in sight, by acting as "fixer" for ex-service men with fraudulent claims for compensation.

U. S. PROBE IMMINENT.

Federal investigation is imminent say the reports.

Veterans, lawyers, officials in the government employ and professors in universities and near-universities are named. The last-named class are charged with conspiring with beneficiaries under the generous government plan of vocational training.

Some of these instructors are charged with keeping false attendance reports, and conducting "straw classes," while the veterans supposed to be studying were getting wages from other sources in addition to the $900 to $1,200 yearly payment of maintenance from the United States.

Among these "students," say the reports, will be found Boston politicians and legislators.

In the ranks of these "overpaid patriots," say informants, few instances of fraud will be shown by those real soldiers who fought their country's fight overseas.

AIDED BY INFLUENZA.

The modus operandi of the State street lawyer, who has left the city but not the State, is interesting, as described. He availed himself of a list of acquaintances who saw service either here or abroad. Several of these he called to his office. He inquired if they had suffered disability or if they had been ill in service. Influenza, from which a great many veterans suffered and reports of which illness were on their records, was this lawyer's greatest money getting aid.

When he found, as he did in the majority of cases, that a veteran had been ill or had suffered an accident while in service he hinted that the ex-soldier or sailor should be collecting from the government. Then he proceeded to show him how he could collect. The man was to report to Dr. So and So, a friend of his professional conspirator. He was to be examined and procure a certificate that the illness in service had left disastrous and chronic effects.

"LAID" FOR DOCTORS.

Armed with this certificate the veteran was told further his procedure. He was to take himself, his record and his newly-obtained certificate of injury or chronic ailment to the bureau of adjustment. The Federal doctor was to be seen for examination. The "lawyer-fixer" had obtained information even of the habits and examining characteristics of the government doctors. If a medico were inclined to be lenient the veteran was instructed to "lay for him."

BILLIE BURKE TO PLAY MAUDE ADAMS ROLES

New York, Jan. 29.—Billie Burke, beautiful wife of Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., is to succeed Maude Adams in Barrie roles.

Billie Burke.

While Miss Adams had announced her retirement, the play-going world has not accepted her decision as final.

But Mr. Ziegfeld now announces that his wife will appear next Christmas in a play that Sir James Barrie will write for her.

Mr. Ziegfeld is arranging a series of five Christmas premieres for his wife, who had a premiere in Rose Briar at the Empire Theatre last Christmas.

BACKERS OF CHICAGO MAYOR INDICTED

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Fred Lundin, former Congressman, and known as the silent power behind the political machine of Mayor William Hale Thompson, and twenty-three others, were named in a blanket indictment today by a Special Grand Jury investigating school board affairs. Virus Rohm, Lundin's nephew, was among those indicted. Some of those named were indicted previously by the same Grand Jury in connection with the administration of the school funds and property.

Rohm is in the insurance business, and it was said he and Dundin were partners for a time and did an enormous business in school insurance.

GAMBLERS ARE HELD UP BY BANDITS

Providence, Jan. 29.—Thirty gamblers were bent over a crap table in Centredale when five masked men entered, thrust pistols in their faces and lined them against a wall.

Two of the bandits seized all the money on the table and "frisked" all the players of cash and jewelry. The bandits then backed out.

One of the thieves locked the door of the room as the gang faded out and the gamesters were forced to stand helpless as two motors raced away.

Lieutenant Lee and Sergeant Flynn of the Pawtucket police, notified of the holdup by one of the victims, were enroute to Centredale when they come across a coupe with two men. They halted the machine.

As Sergeant Flynn pushed his face through the door of the machine he found himself surveying a levelled pistol. He was given a quick shove and toppled back into a snow drift. The machine sped away.

The gamblers reported their losses totaled $2,000 in cash and $5,000 in jewelry.

Veterans Protest

Disabled veterans have sent up a howl of protest against the plan to move the headquarters of the United States Veterans' Bureau from its present quarters in the Siegal Building to the Army Base. They claim the Army Base is too far remove from central transportation points.

MAGNETIC CRYSTAL FOR DETECTOR

WINS WD-11 VACUUM TUBE

HAVERHILL FAN IS 'WRINKLE' WINNER

An ingenious way of making a magnetic crystal detector wins this week's free WD-11 vacuum tube.

The magnetic crystal allows of easy manipulation of the crystal contact in sets using this type of detector. How to make one of these is described by Mr. Mordecai.

"The writer has actually constructed and used one and it has proved very staple and sensitive, especially when used in a reflex circuit.

"The rest of the mounting is simple. The writer used a discarded corset steel for Figure 3."

VICTIM SAID "SCAT" BANDIT SHOOTS SELF

New York, Jan. 29.—Two would-be holdup men were arrested when the victim they selected, Charles Szyacka, looked over the bar of his Brooklyn saloon into their revolvers, said "scat," and so frightened one of the bandits that he shot himself in the leg. The unperturbed Mr. Szyacka with scornful contempt continued drawing near-beer as the bandit was carried out with his companion by the police.

The time for use of "Jiggs" ticket coupons in the Boston American is extended to include today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

The American printed coupons last week which were good for half-payment toward two seats for performances of the exhilarating comedy, "Bringing Up Father on His Vacation," at the Arlington Theatre.

So many coupons were presented at the theatre box office that it was impossible to fill all demands. In order to make good its offer, however, the American has arranged with the theatre management to extend the coupon ticket plan for benefit of persons it was not possible to accommodate last week.

The coupons printed last week will be honored at the theatre for performances Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of this week.

Rum Ship Disabled

Newport, R. I., Jan. 29.—A small power boat cruiser, released by the Federal prohibition authorities in New York twenty-three days ago, was towed into port here disabled. It was learned that she transferred her cargo of liquor to a rum runner off Nantucket.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent. of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

HUSBAND BEATS UP WOULD-BE "SHEIK"

Fitchburg, Jan. 29.—The Rodolph Valentino of the insurance business—Leo F. Lebarge—today exhibited a black eye and sundry bruises in district court in support of his charge of assault and battery by Harold W. Bartholomew. The latter played the part of irate husband, telling of unwelcome attention the former is alleged to have thrust on Mrs. Bartholomew, consisting of pressure of the hand and attempts to hug and kiss.

Bartholomew told the police he laid in wait at his house three days for the arrival of the insurance man.

Germany "in general default." France may go as far as she likes and see what she can do to enforce the original Versailles treaty, including paying thirty odd thousand million gold dollars.

IT IS pleasing to read that President Harding "remains unmoved by pressure" that would force him to meddle in European matters. The President recalls our generous statement: "We want nothing out of the war, no territory, money, nothing." As long as we don't want or get anything else, we certainly don't want partnership in Europe's debts and quarrels.

British Barkentine Rescued

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 29.—The British barquentine Maid of England, Baltimore for Halifax, with a cargo of fertilizer, was taken in tow by the steamer Manchester Shipper, seventy-six miles off Halifax. The barkentine lost all canvas and her foretopmast. She was leaking.

White's Annual February Sale of New Furniture Beds and Bedding at Special Prices

Will Begin Thursday, Feb. 1

The advantages of buying furniture in this once-in-six-months event are well known. Carloads of new furniture are opened up for the first time. Prices are more favorable than at any other time of the year, except for the similar sale we hold every August.

Because this sale occurs before many people are ready to receive the furniture, arrangements may be made to hold purchases for as long as sixty days, if desired, upon payment of a suitable deposit.

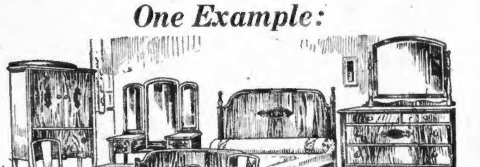

Free delivery in New England by our automobile trucks, or at our option by freight to station nearest your address.

In addition to the new furniture there will be, as usual, many pieces at reduced prices.

3 Days of Advance Selection

As usual, the three days before the sale are set apart for the special convenience of those who appreciate an opportunity for leisurely selection.

One Example:

WIFE FEARS SHE CAN'T RETAIN WHITTAKER

Upon the forgiveness of a forsaken wife the freedom of an erring husband may depend. Mrs. John L. Whittaker of No. 166 Highland avenue, Winthrop, has been given one week in which to decide whether or not she will take back her fifty-six-year-old husband who was found guilty of misconduct with Mrs. Mable Frey.

Judge Laurie of the Municipal Court continued the case of Whittaker, a $20,000 a year Winthrop engineer, intimating that it would be disposed of without sentence if the wife were willing to take the erring husband back on probation.

Mrs. Whittaker is a quaint little gray-haired grandmother.

"I am willing to take my husband back, but I am afraid I cannot hold him. Night and day since last April when I discovered the presence of another woman in my husband's life, my one thought has been I want my husband back. But I am powerless to attract him," she said outside the courtroom.

CONTRASTING MEMORIES.

"I have remembered all the dear ways he had when the children were growing up and the twenty-five years of companionship we have known, and it breaks my heart to contrast the memory with what I know now. I cannot get the thought of silk pajama parties out of my mind. While he was spending large sums, I was wondering how I was going to be able to pay the bills of our house.

"I could not bear to reproach him. After all I cannot blame him altogether for succumbing to the charms of a young woman. He is a man of the world; he seems younger than I and he has grown tired of me. He misses I am old-fashioned and quiet. I do not blame him, but I am broken hearted that I have lost him," the wife continued.

"I wrote to him and told him that I would forgive him, and begged him to return and let me help him face things. If he would only talk it over with me and tell me what fascinates him about this woman, perhaps I could understand and help him. He evaded me, and now I feel that there is no use for him to try to resist," she added hopelessly.

COUNSEL OPPOSES.

Attorney Joseph S. O'Neil, counsel for the Commonwealth, who prosecuted the charges of which Whittaker was found guilty, urged Judge Laurie not to continue the case.

Mrs. Florence Ketchley, whom Whittaker blames for his loss of interest in his home, has been the active figure in the proceedings. She admits quite frankly that it was she who pushed the complaints against Whittaker.

"It is the old story of the doormat wife," she said, in discussing the situation. "My sister has forgiven her husband all of her life. She idolizes him and it kills her to have him blamed for anything."

"Wives who are too loving and forgiving are one cause for the scandalous misconduct of men," the sister-in-law declared cryptically.

PROVIDENCE BARS LARKIN AS SPEAKER

Providence, R. I., Jan. 29.—James Larkin, Irish agitator, was barred from making an address in this city by the police. The police said no permit to hold a meeting had been applied for. Larkin took a train for Boston.

Studio Notes

Roy Del Ruth, one of the leading comedy directors in motion pictures, has been signed by Jack White to direct Lige Conley in his next production. For many years Del Ruth has been one of the guiding geniuses of the Sennett comedies.

Equipping a fur trader's cabin for motion picture purposes is no simple matter, Henry Kolker, director of Alice Brady in "The Snow Bride," has discovered. It took 962 raw skins, valued at $13,998.50, to make the cabin look realistic. The skins were white fox, otter, raw Hudson Bay sables, lynx, Russian ermine, red fox and muskrat.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN
Former well-known film stars who are returning to the screen after a long season in vaudeville.

Motion picture stars who had decided to call it a day as far as their screen careers are concerned, are planning to stage "come-backs" because of the death of stellar material.

Wallie Reid is dead. Rodolph Valentino is restrained by the court from appearing in films. Elsie Ferguson, Madge Kennedy, Nazimova are back in the legitimate, as is Billie Burke, John Kirkwood, Jenny Hull, Mary Hay and many others. Louise Lovely, Mildred Harris, Texas Guinan and Lillian Walker are in vaudeville.

It is because of this shift of activity that Francis X. Bushman and his wife, Beverly Bayne, who left the films for the varieties, have decided to return. They will work together at a studio in Yonkers, N. Y.

Maurice Costello, one of the first recognized stars in motion pictures, who has been away from the camera for years, announced that he intends to resume picturemaking.

It is said that Bushman, Bayne and Costello will be followed by a host of others who were former treats in the cinema field.

NO MYSTERY IN THE WAY POSLAM HEALS

Poslam heals skin eruptions so quickly that some folks almost believe there's a mystery about it. Not a bit!

Years ago an expert was seeking the merit way to treat skin-troubles. One day he made a combination of certain simple, gentle things and tried it on a very severe case of itching eczema.

To his delight it gave instant relief and began to heal. So he tried it on case after case of eczema, rash, pimples and such tormenting, unsightly affections. Almost every time it succeeded. He called it "Poslam." Its merit was immediately recognized and soon it was on sale everywhere. Aided by Poslam Soap, it is bringing skin-health to thousands daily. For trial sample, send 10c. to POSLAM, 245 W. 47th St., New York.

BILL HART TO GO ON STAGE, IS REPORT

ALL is not act that acts well—it may be something, if you consider the screen and its people, that merely acks well. In any event, that is how Eva Gregory tied herself to a comfortable Century Comedy contract. She looked "mighty beautiful" to Jullan and Abe Stern, who do the hiring for their pictures. Miss Gregory may be an artist of extraordinary ability—time will prove that—but she is now on the Century pay roll because she is so soothing to the eyes.

STAGE FOR BILL HART.

IT is commonly reported that William S. Hart, the wild West hero of countless screen dramas, is about to flop from the film to the speaking stage. It is no secret that a well-known producing firm has repeatedly endeavored to coax him into a contract to appear in a real play before real audiences, but it is said that Bill is not enthusiastic on the plan. The lure of the stage will catch the cow-boy hero only if the lure runs into expansive figures.

EASIER TO DANCE

RODOLPH VALENTINO is another idol of the screen to whom the speaking stage is extending a beckoning finger. The Selwyns are said to have a play locked up in the office safe that is exactly the vehicle for the fascinating lover of celluloid heroines. But Rodolph has been announced as a dancing star by one newspapers if it accepted the American terms forthwith. The Daily Mail and the Graphic alone express opposition.

The Herald, Labor's publication, while non-committal regarding acceptance or rejection, says "What ironic laughter there must be in the Kremlin. Great Britain and France at Genoa waxed indignant about the sanctity of international debts, and now Great Britain makes the payment of half her pledged interest a favor, while France announces blandly that she has not the least intention of paying at all until she secures full reparations from Germany."

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $7, and get the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this home-made cough syrup. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. It tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, ocean a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HARVEY LAUDS CHANCELLOR BALDWIN

Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 29 (By the Associated Press) — Ambassador George Harvey declined to discuss the debt situation or other public questions upon his arrival here today on the America after his visit to the United States.

Mr. Harvey, however, took occasion to say that Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made a good impression in America, and asserted that England could not have sent a better man. Not since the days of Viscount Bryce, the Ambassador said, had a more favorable opinion been created in the United States by any British statesman.

British Hope U. S. Will Modify Debt Terms

London, Jan. 29 (By the Associated Press).—It is understood the cabinet will meet tomorrow to discuss Stanley Baldwin's report on his American financial mission.

The popular hope that terms may yet be mitigated is based on the assumption that further efforts will be made through diplomatic exchanges to influence the United States.

It is regarded as certain that if the terms are not modified the coming budget will be a gloomy one for the taxpayers, who have been expecting a surplus.

The government would have the support of a majority of the London

This Is Official—How to Be Happy Though Married

New York, Jan. 29 (By International News Service).—How a man can be happy though married is told today by the Legal Aid Society, under the title of "Domestic Relations Decalogue." The society came to its conclusions after handling thousands of domestic trouble cases. The points are:

Be generous to your wife according to your means.

Do not interfere with a woman in the management of purely domestic affairs.

Be cheerful, even though you find it hard sometimes.

Be considerate, for the average woman is just a bundle of nerves.

Make love to your wife; continue to be her sweetheart.

TRY 2 FOR MURDER IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Jan. 29.—Two men accused of murder today pleaded not guilty when arraigned in district court. They are Frederick J. Durfee, accused of killing his affinity, Mrs. Ada E. Baker, and Hebert J. Aloia, charged with stabbing to death Charles J. McDermott. Durfee, a salesman for Decaur & Hopkins, a Boston hardware concern, fired four shots into Mrs. Baker's body and, according to police, would have killed himself but did not know how to reload his pistol.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN DIES IN TUNNEL

An unidentified man died on the west platform of the East Boston tunnel station under the Old State House today. He is described as about 55, 6 feet 9 inches, weighing about 128, with dark hair and eyes and partly bald, brown mustache, single-breasted blue serge suit and brown vest, gray coat sweater, black overcoat, black shoes, gray socks and dark green cap.

WOMAN STABS GUEST AT BACK BAY REVEL

Slashed from ear to chin and near death, police of the Back Bay station found Edward Harrington, twenty-eight years old, of No. 65 Essex street, Springfield, when they were called to disperse a drinking bout at No. 127 St. Botolph street.

Mrs. Annie E. Harrington, not related to the victim, was arrested charged with the slashing. Harrington is on the danger list at the City Hospital, and is not expected to live.

As material witnesses to the affray and charged with drunkenness two men are held.

They are: John Dunn of Linwood place, Charlestown, and Charles H. Dould, of No. 18 Essex street, Charlestown. They deny having taken part in the fracas.

The dying man told the police he was a guest at the "party" on the invitation of a friend. He declared that he was unacquainted with any other of the guests.

WATERWORKS IN ERIN BLOWN UP IN REPRISAL

London, Jan. 29.—A despatch to the Daily Express from Dublin says republicans have destroyed the water works at Youghal in reprisal for the execution of two men for the possession of arms. Six thousand inhabitants are in a critical situation as only one day's water supply is left.

The dispatch adds that practically every postoffice in West Ireland has been destroyed and that it is almost impossible to buy stamps or to send or receive a letter.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent cuddles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never was a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Other essentials

Modern research also proved other things essential.

So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

What is Missing?

You see glistening teeth everywhere today—teeth you envy, maybe. This is how folks get them. Won't you see what it does for you?

That cloud is film

Teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That is why so few escape tooth troubles.

New ways of attack

No ordinary tooth paste effectively fights film. So dental science searched for film combatants, and found two. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved those methods by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research, and those two new film destroyers were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Now careful people the world over employ it, largely by dental advice,

Millions of men now employ it

Dainty people of some 30 nations are using Pepsodent today. You see the results wherever you look — in teeth that shine.

Pepsodent also brought those people safer, cleaner teeth. It will bring them to you, and at once. See these results and feel them, then judge how much they mean. Cut out the coupon now.

FASTEST BOYS AND GIRLS IN GOLD SKATES FINAL HEATS

RACES ON SATURDAY SURE TO THRILL

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Now for the GOLD SKATES FINALS.

Saturday's trials reduced the field of 1,000 entrants to the 102 skaters who will meet next Saturday in the semi-final and final heats of Greater Boston's First Annual Ice Skating Derby—the GOLD SKATES RACES.

Those 102 constitute the cream of the skating talent of Greater Boston, and such speedy and able performers were they al, that next Saturday's races should prove the most thrilling ever to be staged in this section.

To state that the opening day's program of the great skating derby was a huge success would be putting it mildly.

Fully 8,000 persons crowded the one-sixth of a mile racing course to urge on their particular favorites and accord them enthusiastic cheers when they raced home in qualifying positions, and so spirited were many of the races that the winners were in doubt until the finish line was reached.

Perfect weather conditions: smooth, hard ice, and the ablest of officiating all contributed in making the GOLD SKATES preliminary program one of the most successfully conducted athletic events ever staged in this section, and every onlooker departed Franklin Field vowing his or her intention of journeying there next Saturday for the concluding day of the GOLD SKATES RACES.

The Dorchester section led the list with thirty-five boys and girls who qualified for next Saturday's GOLD SKATES FINALS. Roxbury and intown Boston were tied for second place, each with seventeen qualifiers: Allston, Mattapan and South Boston, each qualified two, and East Boston, Roslindale, Jamaica Plain and Brighton were represented by one qualifier.

Outside the city, Somerville and Cambridge were the high scorers, each with four skaters who qualified for the finals: Medford had three; Brookline, Newton and Chelsea had two each, and Malden, Squantum, Linden, Revere and Newton Lower Falls, each qualified one skater for Saturday's title races.

Most Spirited of the Races for Girl Skaters

[illegible] spirited of the races for [illegible] skaters came in the final heat [illegible] over 18 years of age, when [illegible] Seamans, former New England one-mile champion, and Mrs. Eunice Buckley, another experienced star, were the leading contestants. This race was a nip-and-tuck affair from the sound of the starter's gun until the finish line was reached. Mrs. Buckley proved the winner by the most scant margin, and as both qualified for the finals, their second meeting next Saturday, in which they will be called upon to face other star girl skaters who qualified, should develop thrills galore.

In the trials for girls fourteen to sixteen, the second heat, which brought together Ida Kolodny, Bertha Rump and Rose Berish, proved the star attraction and the finish was a thriller.

In the trials for girls sixteen to eighteen, the heat in which Ethel Marquardt, Mary Nelson and Helen Maloney were the participants, produced the best competition, with all three qualifying for the finals.

Big Thrill in the Boys' Races in This Class

The big thrill in the boys' races came in the final heat for those over eighteen years of age. This brought together Walter Thorne, the New England champion of last year, T. A. Corcoran and Israel Danis two other star performers, who only a few minutes before the race returned from Pittsfield, where they had been participating in the West Massachusetts championship races.

Walter Thorne took the lead at the start, and although closely pressed throughout the race, managed to edge in ahead of Corcoran and Danis.

The preceding heat, in which Harry Thorne, a brother of the New England champion, and Lester Bridges were the stars, proved almost equally exciting, with the younger Thorne coming home the winner.

There were numerous close races in all the other classes and fast time was recorded for each of the winners.

In the absence of Mayor Curley, who is now in the South, Fire Commissioner Theodore Glynn was City Hall's representative at the races, and it was he who opened the afternoon program by starting the first race for girls under fourteen years of age.

IRISH AND JEWISH FIGHTING BLOOD

His name is Lawrence Chester Goldberg—the same little fighting Larry, who gained the judges' decision in ten rounds over "Irish Johnny Curtin recently at New Bedford.

Goldberg comes from a fighting stock. His mother was Irish, and being Irish, she gave him the good old name of Lawrence—the middle name of the late John L. Sullivan. His father was born in Odessa. Larry himself was born in the "Horse Shoe" district of Jersey City on May 29, 1901.

Goldberg is a modest and reticent chap. He is well proportioned with muscles which he developed while working as a flyboy in the pressrooms of the daily papers, and shows real hitting power.

He was matched to box Midget Smith at the Fall River Casino A. C. the first week in February, but the Midget thought it over and decided that caution was the better part of valor. And so Goldberg's next battle will be with Frankie Jerome at the Garden in New York on Friday night.

AMATEUR TOURNEY AT EAST BOSTON

East Boston fans are interested in the amateur boxing tournament of the Sacred Heart A. C., which will be held next Thursday evening at Columbus Hall. Johnny Andreazanno, Jimmy Harmon, Joe Burke and Stanley Martin, all 126-pound boxers, have entered. Andreazanno has won sixteen consecutive tourneys. Burke and Harmon are among the best in their division. Martin is a big favorite with East Boston fans. At the last tourney held by this club he figured in two sensational contests. There is a possibility that Young Baldi will enter this class. The classes are at 112, 126, 135, 147 and 150 pounds. Entries should be made to Tommy Regan, No. 36 Neptune road, East Boston.

LYNN CLUB CALLS OFF BOXING SHOW

The Casino A. C. of Lynn has called off its show billed for tonight. Terry Martin of Providence, who was carded for the main bout, broke his nose at Woonsocket on Friday and could not be in proper condition for the battle.

Tarzan in Hard Training

New York, Jan. 29.—Tarzan Larkin is in hard training for his twelve-round bout with Joe Borrell, of Philadelphia, Thursday night at the Stadium in Jersey City. Nick Scanlon, Tarzan's stablemate, meets Billy Vidabeck, of Jersey City, in the semi-final.

O'Gatty to Fight Palmer

SARAZEN GIVES TIPS ON GOLFING FAULTS

By GENE SARAZEN.

Immediately after the North and South championship last Spring, I went to my new position at the Highland Country Club. I took up my new duties with enthusiasm. During the month of April I spent most of my time in the shop and in preparing for the club season. But all the time I could not help thinking back over the Southern tournaments from which I had recently come. My victory in the Southern Open at New Orleans particularly was satisfying and acted as a great boon to my game.

For, I kept thinking, if I can beat such a field as that for such a large purse—first prize had been $1,000—I ought to be able to do the same thing in the National Open. The field, excepting for numbers, would be virtually the same so far as quality was concerned.

Accordingly I got busy just as soon as good weather set in, which was in the early part of May. I first had all my clubs fixed over, the heads tightened, the shafts oiled, and those that were worn out I discarded. Before you can win any kind of competition you must have a good set of clubs—a kit in which you have every confidence and one which will contain all of the clubs you need for the shots you will have to play.

I did my first practicing last year over my home course, the Highland Country Club in Pittsburgh. This is a very hilly layout, but it afforded me a wonderful opportunity for the right kind of practice. Playing there every day during the month of May I got accustomed to hitting the ball from all kinds of lies, good, bad, sidehill, heavy, soft, sloping, uphill, etc. When I got onto Skokie—which is quite flat—the shots seemed easy in comparison.

I also spent considerable time at Oakmont, one of the finest tests of golf I know of. W. C. Fownes, Jr., was very kind in allowing me the privilege of this course as often as I wished. I cannot thank him too much for favors. Incidentally, I might say that the professional golfer has a wonderful friend in this man.

During my practice rounds I was having trouble with my mashie shot. I had played this shot well in the Southern tournaments. In fact at New Orleans it was easily my best. But during these practice sessions I seemed to have lost my touch. I could not bring the shot off the way I wanted.

That Trouble Is Common With Golfers, Good and Bad

That trouble is common with golfers, good or bad. Ask any of the stars about the matter. They will all tell you that often they lose their best shots and have the dickens of a time getting them back.

I proceeded to study my weakness with the mashie. I knew I had been playing it tight in the South and I thought that I had grooved the swing properly. So taking a bag of balls I went out and practiced for nearly two hours on this one shot. When I came back I had recovered the stroke. I had found that I had been playing the shot with my arms too far away from my body. The mashie shot must be always compact and firm. I had been playing it loosely and erratically.

About a month before the tournament I took a trip to Skokie to play over the course and to find out what kind of shots the various holes called for. Two rounds gave me a capital idea of what I had to do and I went back to Pittsburgh for more practice.

Figures That the Shot Was One Most Needed

I figured that the shot was one needed most at Skokie was the smash to the pin of about 140 yards. The spade-mashie was the club for that shot and I worked like a Trojan during the next few weeks. In my practice round at Skokie I had also found considerable use for my mashie iron. So I put in long hours of practice with that club. By the was Jock Hutchison showed well enough what one could do with a spade-mashie at Skokie in those two remarkable qualifying scores of his 67 and 68.

Since I won the title many people have asked me if I really thought it helped a golfer to play over a course in advance of a tournament. Of course it does. Yet it doesn't do much good if you play over a championship course just previous to the meeting. For then you have no opportunity to work out these shots that are needed.

I believe in visiting the links where the championship is to be played—if it is possible—at least a month in advance. A champion fighter always watches his opponent in the ring if he can before he meets the challenger. Football coaches scout one another's teams all with the idea of getting an idea of the character of the opponent. A golfer's opponent in medal play is the course. He should study that particular link before the encounter if he can.

COMPETITIONS FOR COLLEGE WOMEN

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

New York, Jan. 29.—The development of athletic sports among women has called up the possibility of intercollegiate meets for women in the near future.

The sporting faculty of the University of Kansas in reviewing the athletic status of college women take the viewpoint that, although the time is not yet ripe, it will be soon in the larger universities.

His tabulations of the co-eds disclosed women taking part in some form of sports number 1,627, while the men total only 1,277.

No great surprise should be occasioned if such attempts were launched soon.

TRAFTON HITTING THE PINS HARD

Thayer McNeil Shoe Store team are gradually climbing the ladder of the Boston Retail Store Bowling League. This aggregation has a brilliant young bowler in R. H. Trafton, who is knocking the pins for a healthy average of 92. From the way he is hitting the lumber the three leading teams may get setbacks any time, and the Thayer McNeil outfit will be up around the top. Trafton says not only is bowling great sport for men and women, but it helps to condition everyone. "Rolling the ball will just fix my arm right for this Summer, when I hope to get back at twirling for the Shoe House nine," says he.

HOCKEY FANS TO SEE FLYING SQUIRREL

Tomorrow the "Flying Squirrel" will be introduced to Boston hockey fans when Max Smith, who will play centre ice for the Milwaukee A. C. sextet, will appear. This cognomen was attached to Smith by reason of his startling speed. A little fellow, weighing 118 pounds, this midget Milwaukee forward, is a demon on runners.

Milwaukee has a tough contract on its hands to play the Unicorn tomorrow and Harvard the following night. Yet the Western club players firmly believe they can take the measure of both teams.

The Wisconsin sextet is great for show. They give the fans a great run for their money. Every man is constantly pulling some hockey that thrills.

The B. A. A. will be able to use its full strength. Irving Small, who suffered a broken nose in the St. Nicholas game, will wear an attachment to his cap that will safeguard his proboscis.

Milwaukee is said to use a great passing game. It must be good to prevail against the Unicorn.

The B. A. A. will go to New York, where they play Canadian Club in a United States League game Wednesday.

The Boston Hockey Club-Victoria game Thursday night should be jammed with action. This game counts in the league series. The Vic players firmly believe they will win the Eastern group championship and also are confident that they will take the Unicorn's measure in the next game.

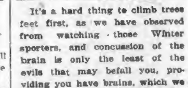

With the New Haven Westminsters expelled from the league a revision of the schedule must be made. St. Nicholas was slated to entertain New Haven next Saturday at New York but the Santa Claus men will find another opponent.

TO ski or not to ski, that is the question. Having been invited to be one of a party of tourists into God's great outdoors, skis, falls and cold applications to be furnished gratis, we are somewhat in doubt as to the advisibility of accepting. Skiing is a most misleading sport.

* * *

It's like eating spaghetti or blowing a saxaphone. It looks simple, but wait until you start. One's limbs have a mean way of not acting in co-ordination, and striking out vigorously and alone for opposite sides of the hill. This has a very tough effect on the main torso, and invariably results in the ski-er assuming a series of Pavlowan attitudes as he or she catapults toward the third tree from the final stop.

It's a hard thing to climb trees feet first, as we have observed from watching those Winter sporters, and concussion of the brain is only the least of the evils that may befall you, providing you have brains, which we doubt, if you ski. The females of the species shriek vigorously as they skid and this seems to break the force of the fall, although tougher on the bystander. This outlet is denied the males, who being of sterner stuff, have to keep their inhibitions in and smile blandly as they shoot to destruction. We're in serious doubt as to joining the sports brigade. We have the knickers, but we lack the knerve.

AND STILL THEY FALL

Dear Sir—I am taking the liberty of writing this letter to you. I am a telegraph operator working for the Western Union. I see where it's costing you a lot of money for no information at all. For five dollars I will send you anybody's information you want for six days' service who is advertised in Racing Form. I see them all. Will also send you name of horses that I see sent from New Orleans by a big gambling commissioner to one of the biggest bookmakers in New York. There is lots of money to be made through them. You can't buy this information from any tipster in the city. These people seldom miss when the money is down. Here is the best proposition you ever got. I will guarantee to make you a big winner. OWENS BATTLES FRIEDMAN; SHEVLIN TAKES ON SHADE

PUTTING THE ISSUE UP TO JOHNNY DUNDEE

By JACK CONWAY.

Title bouts attract. Therefore the interest in the ten-round skirmish between Abe Friedman and Paddy Owens, which will be staged by the Armory A. A. at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night.

Paddy Owens

There is naturally rivalry between this pair. Friedman sought and received two weeks in which to prepare for the quarrel. Owens has also had ample time to get fit.

Over in Cambridge they call Paddy the Fighting Harp. Very good. He hits a stinging sock with each hand and is clever. Ask Abe Attell Goldstein, Patsy Haley, Tommy Noe, Young Montreal and Midget Smith. Paddy has paraded forth to action with these warriors. And he covered himself with glory.

Now Owens wants to be a champion.

And he has taken a fancy to Friedman's title.

"If he defeats me he will get the title," says Abe. "But he won't defeat me," adds the Eddie Mack entry.

Young Carney of New Bedford and Freddy Madden of East Boston mingle in the semi-final of ten rounds. There'll also be a couple of eights.

• • •

Eddie Shevlin, New England welterweight champion, has quit his Hanover, N. H., training camp and has come to Boston to finish his work for his ten-round battle with Dave Shade, which will be staged by the Arena A. C. at Mechanics Building on Saturday night. Shevlin will do his stunts daily at Kelly & Hayes' gym in Bowdoin square. Manager Billy Henderson will direct the training of the greatest of New England's boxers.

Eddie Shevlin.

• • •

Shevlin says the side he injured a couple of weeks ago is now perfect and that he will be in the best condition of his career when he enters the ring with the heavy hitting Shade.

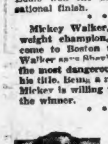

• • •

Shade is preparing for the frolic at New York. The youthful Californian wants to get revenge for the setback he received at the hands of Shevlin a few months back. In the eighth round of that bout, Shade almost knocked Shevlin out. Dave became over anxious with the result that he missed many well meant punches. Shevlin's ring generalship then came to the front and Eddie won the decision by a sensational finish.

• • •

Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, is expected to come to Boston to see the bout. Walker says Shevlin and Shade are the most dangerous contenders for his title. Being a real fighting man, Mickey is willing to take a shot at the winner.

• • •

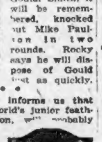

Young Gould.

There will be many fans journey to Mechanics Building Saturday night for the sole purpose of seeing Rocky Smith take a shot at Young Gould. Smith, it will be remembered, knocked out Mike Paulson in two rounds. Rocky says he will dispose of Gould just as quickly.

• • •

Charley Cardio informs us that Red Chapman, world's junior featherweight champion, will probably meet Jack Soarkey at a show to be staged by the Fenway A. C. in Mechanics Building on February 8. Chapman has been training carefully since his winning battle with Charley Beecher and plans to keep busy in the ring. Red is also booked to clash with Johnny Dundee in the semi-final of ten rounds to the Shevlin-Shade bout Saturday night.

Red Chapman

• • •

If Johnny Dundee really wants to do something big for our local Italian charities, why does he not agree to box Joe Tipitiz or Johnny Shugrue for NOTHING? Dundee would be able to defeat either of these men, but he would be obliged to display all of his batting qualities in order to do so. The Italian people have done a great deal for Dundee. It is about time he did something for the Italian people.

Dundee says he is willing to box Willie Jackson, Jimmy Hanlon or Gene Delmont, all setups of the rankest kind, for NOTHING. Which is twice as much as such a bout would be worth.

• • •

The Italian people would like to see Dundee in action, but they insist that he have real opponent. Dundee has been in the boxing game long enough to realize that he is not the only person who knows the values of members of the lightweight division.

Joe Tipitiz.

Of course, Dundee is the junior lightweight champion of the gym at Madison Square Garden, but such a mythical asset does not attract the cash into the box office.

If Dundee will box Joe Tipitiz or Johnny Shugrue, real fighters, for NOTHING, we shall be glad to convey this information to the committee of Italians who are engaged in raising money for the erection of a hospital for wounded Italian soldiers.

MISTER Dundee, we await your answer.

COMERFORD STAR BASKETEER

Tony Comerford, of Boston College fame, will be one of the numerous stars to play on the newly organized Newton Collegian team. On the forward line will be Flynn, former B. C. H. player, and Myers. Monahan of St. Anselm's College. In the back positions will be Ed Harrison of Brooklyn College Club and Dan Smalley of B. C. H. Comerford will be centre. The team averages 185 pounds. Teams desiring games communicate with Bill Comadine, No. 109 Washington street, Room 34.

Elected Grid Manager

Morgantown, W. Va., Jan. 29.—James F. Bryan, of Parkersburg, a junior in the Arts College, has been elected manager of the West Virginia University football team for 1923. It was decided not to enter the Tri-State Basketball League.

Every Champion On Earth to Defend His Title

New York, Jan. 29.—If the plans of Tex Rickard succeed, every fistic champion of the universe will defend titles in New York during the open air season of 1922.

Rickard's program of battling entertainments, which are to begin early in May and extend until the latter part of September, provides for these tussles:

Harry Greb vs. Gene Tunney.

Mickey Walker vs. Dave Shade.

Joe Lynch vs. Carl Tremaine.

AMATEUR RING STARS CLASH TONIGHT

Practically all the winners of the recent tricity amateur boxing tournament held in the city have entered for the open amateur boxing tournament of Boston Council, Knights of Columbus, which will be held at the Scenic Auditorium, Berkeley street and Warren avenue, tonight. The classes are: 112, 118, 126 and 135 pounds.

Competition among the purses is keen and numerous defies are being hurled at the recent winners of the tricity and various tournaments held hereabouts during the past few weeks. Notwithstanding the fact that the amateur gloves wielders have participated in a number of contests within the past ten days, they have not been compelled to extend themselves and are ready to do so at this show. In fact, the calibre of the entries received is so good that the best of the amateurs will have to display all they know of the game in order to come through the bouts with flying colors.

Although there has been a big demand for tickets for the bouts, there are now a number of choice reserved seats to be obtained from Wright & Ditson's and Phelan & Stepton's uptown stores.

CALZA TO BATTLE WESTERN STAR

When George meets George will be the attraction at the Old Howard's Grand Opera House wrestling show next Thursday night. George Calza, the Italian champion, will meet George Hills, the Wisconsin Lion. These men met on a previous occasion and after thirty minutes of the most wonderful grappling ever staged in Chicago, Hills slipped off the mat and strained his ankle and was forced to discontinue wrestling. He has followed Calza clear to Boston to get another chance at him and is confident of his ability to beat him.

George Calza.

He is of equal build and is a strong, aggressive wrestler of the Farmer Burns School. The match is best two in three to a positive finish. Calza will have to be at his best to beat Hills, as he has victories to his credit over some of the best western grapplers.

He is doing his training at a local gymnasium and came East one week in advance to be in the best possible shape. He stated today that should he beat Calza he will immediately go after George Cotsonicos, Stanley Stasiak or John Pesek and force them in to a match with him.

Hills' favorite hold is what he terms the Western Cradle hold. In the use of which he ties his opponent's feet and hands almost together and he says once he clamps this hold on to Calza it will be all over but the shouting.

Eddie is a real classy wrestler and the U. S. ship Florida will turn out to a man to see him perform. Still another bout on the card will be between Joe Perelli, the Italian Wildcat, and Frank Rasch, Kasnch is an Austrian and hails from Mansfield, Conn.

Pesek's Manager to War Against Jack Curley

Max Bowman intends to carry his fight against Jack Curley, at one time the dominant figure in the wrestling world, right into New York. Bauman is manager of John Pesek greatest wrestler in the world and the man who conquered Nat Pendleton.

Jack Curley

Pesek threw Wladek Zbyszko, Curley's pet wrestler, twice in twenty-seven minutes in a match staged at Kansas City, Mo. Curley later had Pesek barred from New York on the ground he was an "eye gouger." This was after Pesek went to New York to wrestle for Tex Rickard, who had the courage to oppose Curley in promoting wrestling bouts in the Empire State.

Bauman says he will appear before William Muldoon, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, and demand that Pesek be reinstated. If necessary, Bauman will expose Curley. He says he may tell something about Curley's part in the Gotch-Hackenschmidt and Johnson-Willard bouts.

Pesek is the world's greatest wrestler. And he is going to wrestle in New York State despite Jack Curley.

HARVARD NOT IN FAVOR OF BIG THREE PACT

Harvard does not indorse the Harvard-Yale-Princeton "Big Three" agreement. Dean Briggs says in his annual report that the pact cannot last very much longer, and asserts that the system of making close inquiry into the financial support for athletes must be discarded. In fact, the dean declares that the inquisition may undermine and ruin sportsmanship among the Big Three.

The dean says:

"Though the athletic situation last year seemed to force on the committees at Princeton, Yale and Harvard the financial inquisition in the responsibility of which I share, such a method cannot be permanent, and indeed cannot be used at all, without danger to the very foundation of sportsmanship.

"Ultimately the information received by the committee depends in most cases on the player's word. There is no questionnaire that a dishonest man cannot circumvent, and the man who wavers between honesty and dishonesty disposes with as easy conscience of questions that he regards as nobody's business but his own.

"A third man, high-spirited and honorable, resents what he naturally construes as a slur on his good name.

"Eventually the questionnaire based on universal distrust will defeat its own end. If the college office should treat every student as a suspect, it would stimulate in the students generally a desire to circumvent it, and would destroy that frank and friendly intercourse on which its efficiency depends. Can a committee on athletics with a similar policy escape a similar fate? I look for the time when Harvard, Yale and Princeton shall say to one another, 'I need know nothing more about the legitimacy of your players than is implied by your willingness that they should represent you.' Then, and not till then, shall we be sportsmen.

"There is serious danger of discrimination against the athlete. The questions we ask him would be insolently personal, if it were possible to treat an athlete like an ordinary citizen.

"Nor is the athlete permitted, unchallenged, to receive such aid as a non-athletic youth, who may not possess half the intelligence or strength of character, might go on receiving undisturbed for years.

"At Harvard the danger of proselyting in schools is slight. The true danger is eagerness to help the athlete already in college . . . one whom we would like to help as we would like to help as a friend."

Dean Briggs severely criticised the system of undergraduate managerial competition, and said:

"The findings of a faculty committee confirmed everybody's suspicion that candidacies for managerships often damaged themselves by an intelligent use of their time, damaged players by servile attentions and damaged sport by such shirking of their college duties as gave it a bad name."

Arlington High hockey team will play Melrose tomorrow and Brown and Nichols School on Saturday.

ALL PROMOTERS GET A SLICE OF DEMPSEY

By W. A. FARNSWORTH.

New York, Jan. 29.—All the various promoters may get a slice of the Dempsey percentage if they are prepared to show something more tangible than conversation. Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, stands ready to distribute the patronage over the coming Summer.

He will sign with Tex Rickard for a match with Jess Willard in Jersey City.

He will sign with the representatives of the Polo Grounds for a match with the winner of an elimination contest among Floyd Johnson, Tom Gibbons and Luis Firpo, if Firpo beats Bill Brennan.

Firpo, who meets Brennan on March 12, will meet the winner of the Johnson-Gibbons bout, which takes place for the Milk Fund on March 19.

He will sign with Lawrence Weber and Harry Frazee for the bout with Harry Wills, which is the only one in which they are interested, and which, it is understood, Tex Rickard does not care to handle.

These would carry Dempsey's activities over the Summer to Labor Day if he did not meet with a reverse in any bouts.

Kearns is determined to conclude arrangements for both Willard and Wills, regardless of the other bouts before any official announcement is made.

He wants Willard first for a very logical reason. He wants Dempsey to get the workout that would be involved in the Willard bout, even though it might be but a few rounds.

He is prepared to sign with Wills for the second bout in New York State or wherever the promoters can find a location, leaving the involved Johnson-Gibbons-Firpo thing until the last.

A man close to Kearns said to the writer last night:

"If the owner of a great race horse such as Man o' War wanted to get him ready for a big race, no one would criticise him if he first started it against horses of lesser calibre than the ones he would meet in the big race. Every one would feel that he was justified in conditioning the animal.

"Kearns has the Man o' War of boxing, and while Dempsey is in magnificent shape right now, still it is not the shape that an actual fight produces. This is something that is recognized by everyone familiar with boxing. He wants the Willard bout first as a matter of preparation.

"If Kearns can make definite announcement of plans and dates for the Willard and Wills bouts simultaneously it would remove undoubtedly much of the objection to the Willard bout. It will prove that the champion is sincere in his desire to meet the leading contender. Wills, and that the Willard bout is merely leading up to the Wills match.

"If Firpo, the Argentine giant, can stop Brennan, then Johnson, the young Iowan, or Gibbons, the fistic veteran, can fight it out in a couple of months with Firpo.

"Whatever he may do against Brennan, the Argentinian will not be immediately accepted as a legitimate contender against Dempsey unless he removes the winner of the Johnson-Gibbons bout.

"Kearns tried long ago to get Willard to go out and demonstrate that he can still fight by taking on two or three well-known heavyweights. Kearns foresaw the difficulties in the way of a Dempsey-Willard match if Jess failed to show something, but Jess has made up his mind that he will fight Dempsey or no one.

"Dempsey is willing to fight Willard as it means a lot of money to him, and what is more important, a lot of preparation for Wills. That is the chief thought in the minds of both Dempsey and Kearns at this time."

Charley Cook, manager of Floyd Johnson, the conqueror of Bill Brennan, issued the statement last night from Gibbons and Luis Firpo, if Firpo beats Bill Brennan.

"If Johnson beats Gibbons on March 19 he will be prepared to fight Firpo inside of two weeks, should Firpo beat Brennan.

"If Firpo will not fight Johnson immediately then he will make a strong effort to get Harry Wills in the ring with Floyd. Willard refused $25,000 to fight Johnson for the Milk Fund, and Willard has just seen Johnson beat Brennan.

"Wills was also present that night and we will quickly find out how Harry stands on the subject of Johnson."

COMMERCE LOSES TWO STARS

By FRED C. LANE.

All hopes of Commerce High winning a leading position in sports this Winter were abandoned when it was learned that Arnold Rumpf, captain, and Nate Levine, the two stars of the track squad, will quit school.

It is a financial question with Captain Rumpf, and it is said by those well acquainted with Levine that he will transfer to some prep school. The loss will greatly cripple the Commerce team, for both are leaders in their respective events.

Arnold Rumpf.

Rumpf is the Regimental senior hurdles champion and also a high jumper of note. Levine is the strongest entry the Back Bay school has in the intermediate dash events. The blow, on top of the announcement that Barney Nolan, 600-yard runner of note had quit track to give his time to baseball was the knockout.

The Dorchester track team has a man's size proposition to face this week. English High, champion of the city schools, will be met on the track Wednesday at the East Armory. This will ring up the curtain on indoor track athletics among the foremost high schools.

English High has a stronger team for the 1923 campaign than that which won the championship last season. Coach Fred Murray has a large number of intermediates and juniors who display speed.

The senior division, led by Captain McKillop, should score an impressive victory.

John D. Murphy of Lowell was elected captain of the St. John's Prep hockey team. William Cochrane, captain-elect, did not return to school.

Murphy was quarterback on the undefeated St. John's football team last year. He played goal on the hockey team last Winter and starred in many occasions.

Melrose displayed its superiority in the Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey league when it won over Somerville. Somerville was considered the strongest team in this league previous to this contest. Not another school in this circuit appears able to take the measure of Melrose.

DR. GRANT SAYS LAWYERS TRY TO RUN CHURCH

New York, Jan. 29.—The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant fired another volley of liberal utterances at the conventional Protestant Episcopal Church during his regular weekly sermon.

He gave no indication that he would yield to the demand of Bishop William T. Manning to recant his oft expressed views or leave the ministry.

The rector vigorously denounced the activities of corporation attorneys whom he charges are seeking to dominate the affairs of the church.

He also referred to charges that his views were influenced by a "certain personal relationship." This was taken to mean his engagement to Mrs. Rita D'Acr 'a Lydig. A marriage which Bishop Manning has forbidden because Mrs. Lydig is a divorcee.

JOBLESS OUTSIDE.

He said his liberal views, which have recently attracted so much attention, are the same he has expressed for forty years.

"Fortunately for other persons involved," he added, "this personal relationship which has been mentioned is not of forty years' standing."

He charged that the church forum has been closed through the influence of corporation lawyers who did not want other than their own economic views given expression.

As he spoke a band of unemployed men, headed by Urban Ledoux, known as "Mr. Zero," paraded up and down in front of the church bearing a banner with the inscription:

BANNER DESTROYED.

"Bishop and Rector: Why quibble over garments? Both unfrock and give us the naked truth. This is judgment."

The banner was torn to shreds by vestrymen.

"A good deal is going on outside the churches," the rector said. "Take the case of the men who are parading outside now. They are an embittered lot of individuals. Any scheme of religion that doesn't take them into account is a religion that might as well be dead.

BY BETTY ALDEN.

DUE to sail soon for abroad are the Robert Jordans—at present visiting with Mrs. Charles Harding at the latter's Palm Beach villa.

Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Harding made the trip from Boston to the gay Florida resort together, Mr. Jordan joining them a few days ago, after a bit of shooting in South Carolina. Mrs. Harding always make a long season of it at Palm Beach, where she's one of the prominent hostesses.

EVEN the most critical wedding "fan" couldn't have been disappointed with the Bigelow-Fessenden wedding, solemnized at high noon Saturday in the First Parish Church at Brookline. The former "Rosie" Fessenden was a very demure-looking bride, the frocks of the attendants showed the touch of a master hand, the weather was perfect, and as for the large crowd which turned out for the event—well, it was the most gathering of the prominent clans.

As for the bride's gown, I noted with interest the departure from the ultra-conventional in the tiny tucks which made up the tulle skirt. There was a long, square court train of satin, over which lay an exquisite lace veil, fastened to the bride's very blonde hair with a wreath of orange blossoms.

Even the folks who never miss a wedding must have gotten a thrill when they saw the bridesmaids' frocks. The latter were of taffeta, made in old-fashioned style with wide berthas and full skirts with bands of basket-weave. First came Miss Helen Scott and Mrs. Geoffrey Smith ("Kay" Cooling) in old rose; then blonde-haired Laura Taylor with brunette Cornelia Hallowell, their gowns of apple green; the third pair—their frocks of peach-color—were tall, stately Florence Feino and brown-eyed Mrs. Richard Saltonstall, the former Mary Rogers; Nell White and Peggy Porter in soft lavender, completed the bridesmaids' group. Their gowns, though different in color, were made alike, every girl wearing a wide-brimmed organdie hat, and shoes and stockings to match her frock.

Dainty Louise Fessenden served as maid of honor. Her gown, of Nile green chiffon with touches of gold and hat to match, was fashioned on the long, straight lines, quite in contrast to the mauve style of the other attendants.

AS for those "among those present," Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden, the bride's mother, a slender, smiling little woman, wore gray brocaded satin with a plumed hat of the same color. Her eldest daughter, Mrs. "Ollie" Ames, Jr., (Caroline Fessenden), was also in gray, her costume a smart affair with a fur-trimmed jacket. The other daughter, Mrs. Freddy Busk (Harriet Fessenden), wore sapphire blue velvet.

Mrs. Hendricks Hallet Whitman was there, as smart as ever, in a long fur wrap and a small tailored hat. Miss Polly Cabot, noted for her terpsichorean artistry, was there, in a fur-trimmed suit of deep brown with a tiny hat to match. The author of that clever Vincent Club play, "Saint," Miss Mary Atkinson, wore a seal cloak, her hat a smart little affair of black, its only trimming a water-lily perched on one side.

Blue-eyed Mrs. Edwin S. Webster wore a coat of gray fur and a jaunty hat of jade green velvet. Gowned in an all-brown costume was Miss Ella Snelling. Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard, whose cleverness on the ice has won her no little fame, was there, too.

I noted that Miss Susannah Wood, wearing a short seal jacket over a simple sport skirt, was the recipient of many greetings from all sides. One acquaintance asked her if she were "getting some practice," for not many moons will pass before Miss Wood becomes the bride of Harcourt Amory, Jr.

HUB PHYSICIAN NOW TEACHES OPERA STARS

Members of the Harvard Club who called Daniel Sullivan "Doc" in the old days now refer to him as Maestro.

In those days—that was before the war—Dr. Daniel Sullivan was a throat specialist. He still is. But a different sort of a throat specialist.

Dr. Sullivan gave up his medical practice in Boston nine years ago, went to New York and proceeded to put into practice a theory he had about vocalization. In addition to being a graduate physician specializing in throat matters, he was a graduate of the school of singing conducted by the late Signor Rotoli, one of the best known singing masters in the world.

Himself possessed of a splendid bass voice, he knew singing from its musical viewpoint and knew it also from his pathological viewpoint. Thus he started his studio, and in a short time he demonstrated that his theory of vocalization was sound. Today he has one of the best known studios in New York.

Dr. Daniel Sullivan.

He came to Boston last week for a sentimental visit. One of his pupils was singing here, and he wanted to hear how he was doing. The pupil he came to hear was none other than George Baklanoff, the Russian baritone of the Chicago Opera Company.

BUYS SAME RAINCOAT HE WORE OVERSEAS

Leominster, Jan. 29.—Donah J. Guillette bought in a clothing store in Athol the army raincoat which he discarded in France four years ago. Guillette visited the store and noticed a stock of army raincoats. Raising the lapel of one of them, he was astonished to see his name under it. He found two small holes on one sleeve which had been burned there by a cigarette. After he had discarded the coat it was reclaimed by the United States government and sold to contractors.

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, Jan. 27th, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.50 cents to 14.50 cents per pound and averaged 12.59 cents per pound."—Advt.

Girls Advised to Attract as Many Men as Possible

A girl should attract just as many men friends as she possibly can. But twenty-six years is the ideal age at which to select a life partner.

This is the advice of Miss Mildred Gutterson, who is in Boston for a two-day convention of the Massachusetts League of Girls' Clubs, of which she is general secretary.

"Early mating is my ambition for every one of the girl members of the league," she says. And she sets the age limit so that each girl will be able to select the ideal man from among her admirers.

SOUTH END CROWD BATTLES POLICEMAN

Patrolman Harvey Yates, colored, of the East Dedham street police station, caused the arrest of two men after an attempt to rescue a prisoner at Massachusetts avenue and Tremont streets, South End.

Charles Obery of No. 103 Winthrop street, Roxbury, who, the police say, was drunk and resisted arrest was beaten so severely he was taken to the hospital.

LOCOMOBILE PRICE IS RAISED $2,000

New York, Jan. 29.—The most radical price change in the history of American motor car manufacture is announced by the Locomobile Company of America, Inc., an increase in prices of approximately $2,000 on various models. At the new prices, effective at once, the Locomobile—one of the oldest automobiles in this country—takes rank with the most expensive cars.

ALDA HEARD IN CONCERT WITH SILOTI

By ZOE FABER.

Mme. Frances Alda, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, and Alexander Siloti, Russian pianist, known to Boston for many years, gave the fourth concert in the Steinert series yesterday afternoon at Symphony Hall. The concert deserved a better audience than it had, although the hall was about half filled, at that.

The program was carefully selected with a view to giving the audience the maximum amount of pleasure, and it was an entirely successful arrangement.

Mme. Alda was in unusually good voice and we never remember hearing her sing to better effect than she did on this occasion. Lester Hodges was at the piano for Mme. Alda.

Of the various things that Mr. Siloti played, we enjoyed the Chopin Etude in C-sharp minor and the A-flat Ballade most. The latter was by far the most impressive thing that the pianist did during the afternoon.

All in all, it was a thoroughly successful concert and gave those who were there more than the usual measure of pleasure.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

USE MULSIFIED

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

DEVIOUS TRAIL OF DOPE DEADLY MENACE TO U. S.

West End Man Hold-up Victim

AMAZING QUANTITY OF NARCOTICS FINDS WAY TO HOME

"Doctor Lambert's statement puts the thing most concisely that we import through our custom houses about ten times the amount of opium our doctors require.

"Beyond and above all this," so the 1919 report concludes, "there is the so-called underground traffic, which is estimated to be equal in magnitude to that carried on through legitimate channels, which is the affair of the so-called 'dope' pedlars, who appear to have a national organization for procuring and disposing of their supplies, which has developed to enormous proportions in recent years and is a serious menace at the present time."—HEARST'S MAGAZINE.

By WINIFRED BLACK

Figures are interesting things sometimes, aren't they?

Ten times as much opium as our doctors require and 112,500 ounces of cocaine manufactured annually in this country and used for illicit purposes.

And these figures do not include the quantity which is smuggled into the country, of which no estimate can be made.

Where on earth does it all come from, where does it go, who's using it, and how do they get to using it?

Is there really a Drug Ring?

Is the world encircled and crossed with a network of secret interests which raise, manufacture and sell "dope"? And if it is, who are the members of that sinister band, where do they live, what sort of people are they, and how do they go to work to find a market for their dreadful wares?

In the last two years, the narcotic traffic has more than doubled in this country.

WHERE IT BEGINS.

It begins in the opium fields of India and the Straits settlements where the English government lends the money to farmers to buy the seed and cultivate the ground and harvest the opium crop.

It begins in South America where coca plantations are—it leads from the coca plantations of South America and the poppy fields of India and Turkey and Persia right straight into some of the greatest business houses of Europe and America.

We have here in our own country three of the greatest "dope" factories in the world. We make in those factories a dozen times over and more too, narcotic drugs than can possibly be used in legitimate medicines for the whole world and we do this every single year.

During one period of five months, 64,000 ounces of morphine salts were shipped from San Francisco to the Orient.

In these same five months, Seattle shipped an amount equal to 379,000,000 average doses of morphine, 23,000,000 doses of cocaine and 148,000,000 average doses of opium.

During one month, there were in the customs office of Seattle awaiting shipment a few cases consigned from New York and Philadelphia to oriental ports and these cases contained 59,000,000 doses of morphine salts and 17,500,000 doses morphine hydro-chloride.

SHIPPED BY JAPAN.

Most of this shipment was consigned to Japan.

The amount shipped by American consigners to Japan, by way of Seattle alone, during the five months' period above mentioned, amounts to about ten doses for every man, woman and child in Japan. Pleasant news for the Mikado. But not so very unpleasant, either, perhaps.

The Japanese do not use narcotics—they sell them to other nations to use. What are the Japanese doing with all this "dope"?

They are shipping some of it to China, quite openly, by way of their own postoffices.

The great fight about the Japanese postoffices in China, which was one of the mysteries of the Washington Peace Conference, was nothing in the world but a fight about narcotic drugs.

China has made a gallant fight to throw off drug slavery, and China won—after two wars.

LONG LANE OF DOPE.

But India went right on raising opium and selling it to the Japanese, and the Japanese sent it into China, and every Japanese postoffice in China is to this day a nest of "dope" pedlars.

And now that it seems to be impossible to keep the "dope" from coming in from other countries, the Chinese farmers are going back to raising it themselves.

In Siberia the new Russian government has tried to stamp out the cultivation of opium, but the peasants arm themselves to protect their fields, and it would take an army there now to stamp out the production.

What does all this mean to you and to me?

It means just this. America uses forty times more "dope" than any other white nation. We buy the crude opium and coca leaves "legitimately" wherever we can get it, manufacture it into morphine; cocaine and heroin "legitimately."

Ship it out of this country to Europe, to China, to Japan and back it comes again "illegitimately" by way of the smugglers.

DOPE RING METHODS.

Today we will deal with the "dope ring" and its methods.

Strange company they keep, some of these great manufacturers and merchants.

Strange companions they make; some of the great nations on the earth; when they make a national business of the "dope traffic."

Beggars and thieves, smugglers and murderers, street pedlars lurking in dark alleys, slippery doctors driving a nefarious business under the cloak of an honorable profession—strange comrade for upright and honorable men engaged in "legitimate" business.

DEADLY MENACE.

Who cares anything about "dope," and "dope" manufacturing, and "dope" raising, and "dope" pedling—until the menace creeps up to your own very doorsteps and snatches your own best beloved out of your own family, and does it all so quietly, so secretly, and with such deadly skill that you never wake up to the truth until it is too late.

Clever people, the Japanese—they know how to buy and sell "dope" and never touch it themselves.

But how about our own great manufacturers who make ten times as much opium as we could possibly use legitimately every year and flood the world with cocaine when they must know, as everyone else who even touches the subject in the most casual way does know, that 75 per cent. of that cocaine is used to form and maintain a habit that wrecks the victim, mind, body and soul.

And how about you and me, and the rest of us—good citizens; good wives and mothers, who sit calmly by and let this thing go on without a protest because it is "none of our business?"

WIFE'S PHONE CALL REVEALS DEAD BODY

Mrs. John F. Timmins of No. 324 Lincoln street, Brighton, failed to reach her husband by telephone at the Brighton stockyards, where he is employed as a watchman. She went to the yards and found Mr. Timmins unconscious in a chair in the office. He died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. He was seventy-five years old.

Express Their Views on Choice of Husbands

Young Women of Today Obey Own Wishes, Say Boston Girls.

GIRLS SAY THEY CAN PICK OWN HUSBANDS

"She certainly is and if she can't she deserves to be an old maid for the rest of her life." Caustically young Boston girls make it plain where they stand on the subject.

Supreme Court Justice John Ford of New York stirred up a little storm of reproach by announcing from the bench that "when a girl gets to be fifteen or sixteen she ought to be put in a cage and shut up until she reaches her twenty-fifth birthday."

RUSH INTO MATRIMONY.

In the judge's opinion, the young women under twenty-five rush into matrimony without understanding its importance and significance.

"If the girls aren't able to choose a husband before they are twenty-five, then men aren't capable of choosing a wife until they are thirty. Girls at twenty, especially in the business world, know just what kind of a husband they want and go and get him," declared pretty Kathrine Draper of Medford.

"I have in mind nine divorce cases which I have handled within the past few months.

"In every case," he says, "the couples were married at the ages of nineteen, twenty, twenty-one and twenty-two. It is seldom that I run across a case where the contending parties were married after twenty-five or twenty-six."

VALUES ADVICE.

With a touch of shy modesty, Elsa Noring of Lawrence, not yet twenty, who plans to start on a career in the study of oratory, admits that she would value her father's advice on all affairs of the heart and in other things, for that matter.

But, although just out of high school, Miss Noring has managed to crowd in some business training and sees a great deal of self-reliant college girls. She says:

"It seems to me that girls are level-headed, and perfectly capable of managing a home and a husband before they are twenty-five. If, at the age of twenty-one, they have not developed sufficiently in experience and ability, they are not up to the average.

Twenty-year-old Helen J. MacRae of the Back Bay does not agree with the rest.

"I have three sisters, all of whom married after they were twenty-five. They chose wonderful husbands and chose wisely. I think they benefited by waiting until they were sure they would not change their minds. It is such a sorry predicament to marry at nineteen and then realize that it was only a boy and girl affair.

"L" ADMITS SERVICE FAULTS

Standard Not Yet Reached: General 5-Cent Fare Hopeless for Years

Frankness is the keynote of the fourth annual report of the public trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway, made public today, as submitted to the Senate and House of Representatives.

1—The railway is not yet in the good operating condition it should be.

2—Accommodations are not yet at the standard they were expected to reach.

BUT

3—Any substantial reduction in the 10-cent fare "must still await repayment of the loss to cities and towns, and legislation that will remove certain burdens that are unjust."

OFFER APOLOGY.

In apology for the lack of ideal service, it is explained that "it has been understood from the beginning that improvements must be gradual and that effort to bring them about must cover a considerable period of time."

The fourth calendar year of public operation of the road shows a balance remaining after providing for all costs of service of $1,645,055, after making allowance for delayed charges and credits.

SERVICE IMPROVED.

In the matter of improved service the report states:

"During the year, with a view to more efficient service, additions have been made to rolling stock. Thirty-six new steel cars for the elevated service have been placed in commission. In April 100 semi-convertible cars of the most modern type were ordered and seventy-one of them are now in use.

Comparative tables of total receipts for costs of service the past five years show:

Year	Total Receipts	Total Cost of Service
1918	$21,052,692	$24,707,633
1919	$29,498,582	$31,880,682
1920	$34,031,686	$34,379,806
1921	$33,277,025	$32,106,580
1922	$32,699,176	$31,286,987

Losses and gains in net revenue for the same period were:

1918	Loss	$3,644,941
1919	Loss	$2,382,099
1920	Loss	$347,167
1921	Gain	$1,171,444
1922	Gain	$1,412,189

Summary of receipts and cost of service for 1922 follow:

Total receipts	$32,699,176.31
Operating expenses	22,368,468.75
Taxes	1,487,184.83
Rent of leased roads (Including Dividend Rental under Chap. 159, Acts of 1918)	3,737,859.41
Subway and tunnel rents	1,927,150.59
Interest on borrowed money	1,891,315.51
Miscellaneous items	65,016.14
Total cost of service	$31,286,987.29
Gain for year	$1,412,189.08

NO GENERAL FIVE-CENT FARE.

On the five-cent fare situation the report says:

"The five-cent fare has been extended from time to time under the plan adopted for its development. As soon as practicable this service should completely cover transportation between community centres and desirable.

Of the much-criticised oneman car the report says that, when there is no compelling need of the most drastic economy, the general substitution of the one-man car is not their adjacent neighborhoods."

FRY FACES TRIAL BY MASONS

Former Drug Agent Used the Name of Organization in Duping Fellow-Members

The misuse of the Masonic emblem by Ralph A. Fry, former Federal narcotic agent now awaiting sentence for blackmailing "dope" addicts and others in Maine, has been called to the attention of the officers of the Grand Lodge of that State for action.

If Fry is found guilty he will probably be ousted from the order. Although he is not a member of a Maine lodge he may be tried in the State where the offence is alleged to have been committed.

Many of the Maine men whom Fry blackmailed or attempted to "shake down" are Masons. His usual method was to approach these men and say "I am a fraternal brother of yours and will do all I can for you, but the Catholics in Boston must be taken care of." Then he would attempt to blackmail his "fraternal brothers" and put the cash in his own pocket. Invariably he called attention to the Masonic emblem on the lapel of his coat at the beginning of his talk.

"WORKED" DOCTORS.

Some of the persons upon whom he "used" the emblem of the order are J. G. Carswell of Gorham, Me., former president of the State Pharmaceutical Association; Dr. F. L. Redman, a sixty-three-year old Corinna physician; Dr. Walter Baker of Buxton, who, it is alleged, paid him $1,000; Dr. Wyndham of Lisbon Falls, and T. Richard Pye, druggist, with stores in Westbrook and Woodsford.

After Fry had "shaken down" Dr. Tozer, proprietor of the Neal Institute of Portland, Me., for $200, he learned from Tozer that Dr. Redman was an addict. Fry arranged for Dr. Tozer to get Dr. Redman to go to Portland. There, in Fry's room at the West End Hotel, the beginning of the attempted blackmailing took place.

CLAIMED "32ND."

"I observe that you are a brother Mason," said Fry to the old physician. "I, too, am a Mason." Then, giving the lapel of his coat a little flick, he added: "I am the youngest 32nd degree Mason in the country." Dr. Redman afterward declared that he tested Fry and was convinced that the last statement was one of his many lies.

Later Fry visited Dr. Redman at Corinna and examined his books.

"You are my brother," the doctor says Fry stated, extending his chest. "I'll do all I can for you. But I've got to fix the Catholics in Boston. It will cost a lot of money. The money has got to go three ways."

When Fry attempted to "shake down" Mr. Carswell of Gorham, he ran against a snag and was invited to take the country air outside the store. Fry also told Carswell that he was a "brother Mason."

SEEK REMOVAL OF LYNN'S COAL DISTRIBUTOR

Charges that City Fuel Commissioner William H. Day, Jr., of Lynn, ordered hard coal delivered to the homes of wealthy residents and to his own home at Marblehead while other persons, some of whom had paid for coal deliveries last September and others who had sickness in their homes, were unable to get any hard coal at all, have been made by the Lynn City Council.

At tomorrow night's meeting of the council, the president, William H. Cochrane, will introduce a resolution calling on State Fuel Commissioner James J. Phelan to remove Day from office. Gross misuse of the powers of his office is the technical charge. Day is also secretary of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce.

According to President Cochrane of the City Council, Day had two tons of hard coal delivered to his own home at Marblehead last Thursday by a Lynn dealer. Marblehead is five miles from Lynn and is outside the fuel jurisdiction.

Another charge is that ten tons of hard coal were delivered to the home of Daniel Pinkham, Western avenue resident while another man living in the Pine Hill section, who had paid for four tons of coal last September, was unable to obtain any delivery.

SPECIALIST STOPS 4-HOUR NOSE BLEED

Mrs. Anna Ewer of Flushing, N. Y., is in a serious condition at City Hospital as a result of a hemorrhage beginning on a train pulling into Boston and lasting more than four hours. Dr. Schwartzman, a specialist, succeeded in stopping the flow of blood. The woman underwent an operation on her nose Tuesday.

East Boston Gang Robs Pedestrian After One of Them "Borrows" a Dollar

John Vincent of No. 11 Anderson street, West End, was held up and robbed of $23 at Brooks and Paris streets, East Boston, today, by three young men after he had kindly given one of them a dollar for a night's lodging.

An hour later Sergeant John J. Freeman, on Vincent's identification, arrested Edward Dolan of Princeton street, East Boston, as the one who took his money.

Vincent thought the chap to whom he gave the dollar and who then took the rest of his money, walked as though he had a wooden leg. Dolan's left leg is a wooden one.

Vincent had been calling on East Boston friends and was on his way home when he encountered the three strangers.

One inquired: "Hello, are you lost?"

"No," said Vincent; "I'm on my way home."

"Say, Buddy, got a cigarette?" asked the tallest of the three, the one who limped.

Vincent produced cigarettes and they took some. Then the limping one said: "Have a drink?" "No," replied Vincent.

"Say, Buddy, you couldn't let me have a dollar could you? I haven't got a place to sleep."

Vincent pulled our his roll of $24, peeled off one and gave it to the tall stranger, only to have the other two seize him, pummel him and throw him into a doorway. He was forced down on the steps with threats, "Keep quiet or we'll blow your brains out."

Vincent managed to shove his remaining $23 back into his pocket, but the tall one dexterously fished it out, then the three hustled off.

In a night restaurant in Day square, where fourteen young fellows were assembled, Vincent pointed out Dolan as the tall chap.

PRE-WAR DOLLAR BUYS 63 CENTS' WORTH NOW

The dollar had a general purchasing power of 63.5 on a pre-war basis during the week just ended, according to the weekly index number service established by Professor Irving Fisher of Yale University. This service shows the average improvement from week to week of the wholesale prices of 200 representative commodities and of the purchasing power of money. Both are on a comparison of 1913 statistics. Thus in May, 1920, prices exceeded pre-war levels by 1477 per cent. and a dollar was worth 40.5 pre-war cents.

ONE DROP OF POISON

A Short Story of a Suspicious Husband and His Pretty Wife Who Planned a Great Surprise for Him on His Birthday.

By Florence McIntyre

CAROL BLETHEN brought down the animosity of her whole family when she said "No" to the stout, bald-headed gentleman with the large bank account whom her ambitious mother thought a fitting mate. Instead Carol married the boy she loved.

In the three months of their wedded bliss not a single word of forgiveness or encouragement had come from anyone save sister Beth, who risked the friendship of her loving parents by paying the newly-weds a visit.

Beth had come and gone back to her palatial home in a distant city and Carol, with a wealth of love in her tender heart for the mother and father whom she had displeased, wondered what their next move would be.

Bound to Change

"You'll see, Jacob," she said, "they'll come around sooner or later. They're bound to."

One day, arriving home earlier than usual, he found himself alone in the apartment and there, upon the table, lay a letter to his wife.

It had been opened before she went out. Jacob's curiosity overpowered him and he slipped the letter out and read:

"My Dearest Sister:

"I have addressed a letter to you at the general delivery. Please call for it promptly. Send it in the postoffice and not home, for I do not want Jacob to see it. . ."

Calming himself, Jacob determined to patiently await his wife's return. He did not have much time to brood, for a few moments later Carol's key turned the latch. Dimpled, smiling and radiant, she entered and bestowed upon her beloved his usual evening kiss.

Dinner was served. Jacob helped with the dishes, as was his custom. Carol was voluble about everything except the letter. Had she entered into league with her family against him? He wondered. By god, he'd leave her before she got a chance to make a monkey of him!

"You've always said I had courage, Carol," he began in a tremulous voice. "Why don't you prove it now? . . . . . I don't give a hang what your money-worshiping family thinks of me. . . . Don't look so blamed innocent . . you know . . I mean the letter . . . the letter. What are those sneaks doing behind my back?"

"Remember, Jacob," returned the wife, "curiosity killed the cat. You'll be desperately ashamed of your bitter words when your temper cools!"

"Well, I'm entitled to some explanation!" demanded the young husband.

"I received the letter," continued his wife, "but I have promised not to divulge its contents to you."

"Then, we're through, young woman—through, I tell you."

White with rage, he dashed to the foyer where his hat and coat hung.

"One moment," said his wife and drew forth a letter which she insisted he must read.

And this was what he found:

"Dear Little Sister:

"Here is the letter I wrote you about. You probably don't remember, but you confided to me the date of Jacob's birthday and the family is sending a gift box. The check enclosed is from Dad, and Mother personally selected the meerschaum pipe. I hope he'll like the robe I am sending.

With Blessing

"Give him this letter tomorrow, and tell him that with it goes our blessings to one who has made our Carol so happy. . . ."

There was a moment of silence, then Jacob dropped to his knees and wept.

"I wanted it to be such a big happy birthday surprise, dear," she consoled, stroking his hair.

"Carol, I'm a beast. Forgive me."

The shrill ring of the bell interrupted, and down below in the hall they heard the voice of an expressman hastily calling that he had a package for them!

The North Wind

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

THIS is the time of the year when "the wintry winds do blow." Do you remember with what gusto you used to sing that when you were little? And the pink and white old music master, in his black brilliantine duster, used to cry in a fine rage because the schoolroom of childish voices sounded too weak and frail! "Now, then, where is your spirit? Try once again. Imagine the wintry winds blowing you across the hills. Use your voices—open your mouths—SING! Now, then, EVERYBODY FORTE!" And then—with grimly determined faces, with spirits whipped into a fine frenzy, hearts bent on obliging, you burst into a terrifying outburst, the swinging sentence gathering way and power until it exploded with one terrible BANG! on "blow," and the old music master put his hands on his ears and collapsed into his chair, blown over, as it were, by the sweep of the wintry winds!

Now the North Wind comes striding out of the cold Polar world. And snow is flying before the white and blue genie, with his embroidery of frost on his tunic, his snow-diamonds, his eyes of blue ice. Pink ear-tips are nestled in fur and pink finger-tips are holding down flying skirts.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

I TURNED to seek Carlotta's eyes, to smile reassuringly and convey that I forgave her for telling Phoebe Betty is at Dreamwold. But what I now saw robbed me of the power of speech.

Carlotta sat with her head flung high—her eyes like stars. Her face was proud and unafraid. She knew what she had acknowledged and she was proud. She would never again run away from the truth she had just revealed. This was clear.

Let's have our coffee in the sun-room as if we were a formal dinner party," she said. "After all—we have plenty to celebrate. Just being together and understanding and loving each other is—so much."

She Arose

For the rest of the evening Phoebe showed the thoroughbred strain that is as much Harrison as is the caustic and hypercritical attitude of intolerance she'd been taking early in the evening. She was sweet and charming—the lovable little pansy-face whom no one can resist. Neal, of course exerted himself to the utmost and fairly flashed the brightest facets of his personality. He was so entertaining, so full of amusing anecdote and clever tricks that we laughed the rest of their visit away.

But for all Neal's diplomacy, I felt ashamed of Phoebe's awkwardness and caustic criticisms. She had forced the truth from Carlotta. I felt that the time must come when Carlotta would resent the fact that her secret was open at least to Neal and to Phoebe.

Knocked at the Door

So when my hair-brushing operations were interrupted by a knock on the door, I felt as if my prophecy were in for an early fulfillment. Carlotta would'nt come in to visit me at the intimate midnight hour unless she were in a mood to talk right out in meeting. And, since I wanted to tell her how Betty had spent her first night in the city right in the Harrison house, I needed a mood of frank and simple honesty to clear the way for this revelation.

"Anne! They know—don't they?" demanded Carlotta breathlessly from the threshold, when at last she turned the knob in answer to my—"Come."

"I'm sure they do," I agreed, without pretence. "Are you sorry?"

"For one moment after—I'd given myself away. I could have bitten my tongue out," acknowledged Carlotta. "I hated Phoebe for forcing my hand like that. I despised myself for—losing control of myself. I thought you'd never forgive me for breaking my word. The only wild emotion I missed out on was the one I should have had."

"What was that?" I asked, half amused, half terrified by the tone of bald honesty Carlotta was taking.

PRESSURE COOKER

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

THE up-to-date housewife who would give herself more leisure time and at the same time provide warm nourishing food for her family with the least expenditure of effort and fuel will do well to look into the new aluminum steam-pressure-cookers. The cooker is set over one burner, and the entire meal is cooked at once.

At one demonstration I attended in a department store recently the cooker was adjusted to a pressure of fifteen pounds, and a dinner consisting of hamburger steak, sweet potatoes au gratin and steamed apples was cooked in exactly twelve minutes. Think of it!

The demonstrator showed me a dinner cooked in thirty minutes at the same pressure of fifteen pounds. This dinner consisted of fried chicken, boiled potatoes in jacket and a delicious date pudding. Instead of paying a high price for a young, tender frying chicken, with the pressure cooker an old fowl was used.

The bird was cut into suitably sized pieces, seasoned with salt and pepper, rolled in flour and browned in fat in the bottom of the cooker for a few minutes. Four slices of bacon were added and then the other inset dishes adjusted.

ELECTRONS AND ATOMS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest

"There are about ninety so-called 'elements' in the universe. The 'elements' are made up of molecules; molecules are made up of atoms and atoms are made up of electrons. Since all wood is all wood, all water is all water, all metals are all metals and all flesh is all flesh, all electrons must be all electrons. But the wood, the water, the metals and the flesh are all made up of electrons which are all alike; how, then, do you account for the difference in character of all these materials?

—H. R., Port Huron, Mich."

WE must go back as far as the atom to find the explanation. The atoms of every element are all alike, but the atoms of different elements are unlike. An atom from one piece of iron is just like an atom from another piece of iron, but an atom of iron is unlike an atom of gold, or an atom of oxygen. Yet, these different atoms are composed of electrons which are all alike.

Since the electrons are alike but the atoms constructed from the electrons are different, it is evident that the cause of this difference must lie in the varying ways in which the electrons are put together to make up the atoms.

You may liken the electrons to bricks all of one kind and shape which, when put together, produce buildings very different from one another, according to the number of bricks used and to the structural or architectural plan on which they are combined.

The generally prevailing theory is that every atom consists of a "nucleus" and a number of electrons revolving around it. The difference between atoms seems to depend upon the number of electrons bound up with the nucleus.

In a hydrogen atom there is one electron; in a bellum atom, two electrons; in a carbon atom, six electrons; in an iron atom, twenty-six electrons; in a gold atom, seventy-nine electrons; in a radium atom, eighty-eight electrons, etc. These are called the "atomic numbers" of the different chemical elements, of which about ninety-two are known.

The internal structure of an atom depends upon the number of electrons in it. In atoms having many electrons they are found as being arranged in layers or shells around the nucleus. These peculiarities in the make-up of the atom determine its chemical character and its physical properties when combined with other atoms to make the molecules of matter. Fundamentally we cannot explain why a certain number of electrons combined in a certain way should produce upon our senses the impression which we recognize as characteristic of gold, and another number of electrons combined in another way the impression of some other elemental substance, say more than we can explain why a certain frequency of light-waves striking our eyes should produce the impression of red and another frequency the impression of blue. We can only take notice of the facts.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

—By Beatrice Fairfax—

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Three weeks ago I had a quarrel with my sweetheart whom I have been going with for four years and to whom I was to be married as soon as he was in a position to do so.

At the time of our quarrel I told him that I never wanted to hear from or see him again. This is by no means our first quarrel, but this is the first time that we have not seen each other so long after a quarrel.

It is his fault this time and it is his duty to ask for forgiveness, which he always does, but I have distinctly told him that he should not write to me or call me up. This is the first time that he has ever respected my wishes.

I know that he loves me, but he is very proud, but what I am trying to bring out is this: That if he really and truly loves me he ought to try and make an attempt to see me or else call me up. I think that a girl should have more pride than a boy.

R. R.

YOU told him you didn't want to hear from him again. He has complied with your wishes, and you add mournfully that this is the first time he has done so. What kind of a wife do you expect to be? You are unreasonable in the extreme. You know nothing of the give and take of all sanely balanced human relations. There is no question of who should have more pride—man or woman. There is just the fact that pride is generally stubborn selfishness. If you want to see the man, you will have to meet him more than half way this time. And for the future learn to be a little fairer in your attitude.

A SMART FROCK FOR THE GROWING GIRL

4182. To the girl who likes "something different" this model will be very attractive. It has new sleeve lines, and net inserted pockets. The neck finish is comfortable and pleasing. The style is good for knitted fabrics, for velveteen, taffeta, prunella and serge. The sleeve may be short or in wrist length.

The pattern is cut in three sizes, 12, 14 and 16 years. A 14-year size requires 3¾ yards of 40-inch material.

A VERY PLEASING AFTERNOON OR DINNER DRESS WITH THE NEW "SIDE DRAPE"

4167-4049. Satin crepe with embroidery for decoration would be attractive for this style. Canton crepe or velvet is also nice.

The blouse 4167 is cut in seven sizes, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. The width at the foot is 2½ yards. To make the dress for a medium size will require 6¼ yards of one material 40 inches wide.

NEW SERIES OF AUTHORITATIVE ARTICLES

By Maria Jeritza

(The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.)

There is the lazy individual, for instance—fortunately a rare specimen in this active age—who has not even sufficient energy to wish to appear at her best. She slouches her shoulders because that is the natural expression of her drowsy, indolent attitude toward life. After a few years her shoulders become round and thick and square, far removed from the lovely lines of her youth.

Then there is the woman who is filled with timid fear or nervous terror of—she knows not what—everything in life! She has never faced her fears in order to analyze them and detect their illogical absurdity. She carries her shoulders tensely high, for she goes through life tense, ready to shrink away from the blows of fate, which fortunately come far less often than she expects them.

On the other hand, the over-emotional woman, or rather the woman who has never learned to control her emotions, constantly "emotes" with her shoulders. They reflect her every amazing or despairing or stormy mood, and the result is that she too often distorts them in ugly postures that quite conceal her neck and obscure the graceful lines of her torso, neck and shoulders. This habit eventually leads to high, square shoulders and mars the beauty of her neck and chin.

And so, as usual, we return to our remedy of primary importance—right, constructive thinking. Become conscious of your oneness with the great, wise, perfect thought that outlines the universe—that you are bigger than any storm of emotion or passion which may try to tear you—and you will have begun to acquire the calm, fearless poise that results among other blessings, in shoulders held not rigid or stiff, but naturally erect or supple.

The shape of your neck or shoulders will gradually grow more symmetrical as the result of this correct carriage, and finally they will support your head as naturally and as gracefully as the stem of a flower does its lovely blossom.

Here are two simple exercises, the first to give the correct position for the shoulders, the second to strengthen their muscles and make them flexible and supple without disturbing the becomingly rounded contour.

Stand erect, being sure your weight is on the balls of your feet. Raise your arms, palm out, until they meet above your head. Lower your arms without changing the position of your body, turning your palms in. Your shoulders are now in a natural, unforced position.

From this position, lift your arms with your hands and fingers extended until they are on a level with your shoulders. Now move your shoulders in a circular motion back, upward, and into position. Repeat ten times, then reverse, up, backward and to position.

THE PRIDE OF PALOMAR By PETER B. KYNE

Struggle of the Last of an Ancient Line to Save Estate From Hands of Japanese

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

The story opens on the Rancho Palomar, an extensive tract in Southern California. Old Don Miguel Farrel, alone on the heavily mortgaged rancho with only his last faithful retainer, Pablo Artelan, and the latter's expansive wife, receives a telegram from the War Department at Washington announcing the death in battle in Siberia of his only son, "Don Mike." The shock kills him. Don Mike arrives and finds a family of Parkers there, including a beautiful daughter, Kay. Mr. Parker is scheming to get the ranch and sell it to the Japanese. Don Mike asks him to bid on it and then refuses to sell. Kay gives Bill Conway money to go on building a dam on the ranch. Mike has his old race course fixed up and Panchito is given a trial of speed.

Don Mike arrives at Tia Juana, in rich Mexican garb

"WHEN will Panchito be ripe to enter in a mile and a sixteenth race?" he asked Parker.

"About the middle of November The Winter meeting will be on at Tia Juana, Baja California, then, and Leighton wants to give him a few try-outs there in fast company over a much shorter course. We will win with him in a field of ordinary nags and we will be careful not to win too far or too spectacularly. We have had his registry brought up to date and of course you will be of record as his owner. In view of our plans, it would never do for Danny and me to be connected with him in any way."

Don Mike nodded and rode over to Agua Caliente Basin to visit Bill Conway. Mr. Conway was still on the job, albeit Don Mike hazarded a guess that the old schemer had spent almost $200,000. His dam was, as he facetiously remarked, "taking concrete shape," and he was rushing the job in order to have the structure thoroughly dry and "set" against the coming of the Winter rains. To his signal relief, Farrel asked him no embarrassing questions regarding the identity of the extremely kind-hearted person who was financing him; he noticed that his young friend appeared a trifle pre-occupied and depressed. And well he might be.

The secret knowledge that he was obligated to Kay Parker to the extent of the cost of this dam was irritating to his pride, while he felt that her loving interest and sympathy, so tremendously manifested, was in itself a debt he would always rejoice in because he never could hope to repay it, it did irk him to be placed in the position of never being able to admit his knowledge of her action. He prayed that Bill Conway would be enabled to complete the dam as per his contract; that Judge Morton would then rush to trial Conway's suit for damages against Parker for non-performance of contract; that Conway would be enabled immediately to reimburse himself through Parker's assets which he had attached, repay Kay and close the transaction.

On November fifteenth Danny Leighton announced that Panchito was "right on edge" and, with a few weeks of experience in professional company, fit to make the race of his career. The Winter meeting was already on at Tia Juana and with Farrel's consent, Panchito was lovingly deposited in a well padded crate, mounted on a motor truck and transported to El Toro. Here he was loaded in an express car and, guarded by Don Mike, shipped not to Tia Juana, as Parker and his trainer both supposed he would be, but to San Diego, sixteen miles north of the international boundary—a change of plan originating with Farrel and by him kept a secret from Parker and Danny Leighton. The New Commandment

A teacher in an elementary school had given lessons to an infants' class on the Ten Commandments. In order to test their memories she asked:

"Well?" said the teacher.

"Keep off the grass," was the unexpected reply.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

Be Sure to Read Them to Your Children

Why Billy Never Complains

ONE day while Billy and his sister Bess, were out playing in the woods, Billy stubbed his toe and sat down to cry.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" he sobbed, the big tears rolling down his face. "What ever shall we do, Bess? I can't walk another step."

"But you must walk," exclaimed his little sister, Bess. "I would carry you if I could, but I'm too little."

"You'll have to run right back home and bring Mama or I'll have to stay out in this wood all night and—"

"Would the big bears and lions find you and eat you?" asked Bess, her big blue eyes fairly popping out of her head. "Come on, Billy, let's go home."

Billy tried to walk, but his toes hurt him. He sat down on the log and cried so hard that Bess started home for their mama.

"And the big bears might come and—" sobbed Billy, when something attracted his attention and he stopped crying.

"Well, that's sure some spider," said Billy as the eight-legged creature came slowly over the green and started up the log on which he sat. "Oh, don't come up here. I don't like spiders."

"No," drawled the intruder slowly. "I'm not fond of them myself. But what have you been crying for? Has some spider frightened you?" And the eight-legged creature came slowly up the log. "Don't be frightened. I'm Granddaddy-long legs. I never harmed a soul in my life. What are you crying about?"

"Oh, I've hurt my foot and I can't walk home, and the bears and lions are going to eat me when it gets dark." And Billy's tears began to flow. Granddaddy long-legs smiled to himself and came up to look at the bruised toes.

"Well, well," he laughed merrily. "To see your face one would think you had lost four legs instead of just bruising your toes. What would you do if you had lost a leg like I did one day? Die, I suppose. But, pshaw. You giant boys certainly do amuse me. Why, as long as I've got one good leg to hobble on, you'll never hear me complaining. It doesn't pay. One's better than none, you know.

"Oh, Dear! Oh, Dear!"

"Now, if I w[illegible] I'd just get right up and walk home. It may hurt for a [illegible] but goodness if you had eight legs to look after you'd have some cause to be worried. It's foolish to cry when you've only bumped your toes. What if bears or something should get your sister while you sit here crying?"

"Why, granddaddy long-legs," he cried, "I never thought of that, and Mama might be busy and couldn't come. You're right; I'm a selfish little boy to let Bess go through the woods. My foot's all right." And without another word Billy ran off after his sister, calling [illegible].

[illegible] long legs looked after them and shook his head sadly. "My! What would he do with eight legs? He'd be stubbing his toe all the time." And wagging his head he hurried on home.

But that was the last time Billy ever complained when he bumped himself.

WHERE MEN AND WOMEN WEAR FUR COATS ALL SUMMER

IF you walked down the street some red-hot day in August and saw a man in a great bearskin coat you would think he was either crazy or paying a bet, wouldn't you?

But, should you go to Asia Minor you would see many people wearing this very same kind of a garment. They have neither been gambling nor are they out of their minds.

Lemon Cream Pie

Four eggs, 2 heaping tablespoons flour, the grated rind and juice of 2 lemons, 1 cup sugar, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups boiling water. Beat yolks and whites separately. To beaten yolks add sugar, flour, lemon rind and juice, and lastly boiling water. Cook in double boiler and when it begins to thicken add to it one-half of beaten whites. Stir this in thoroughly and let it cook until it is as thick as desired. Use the remainder of the egg whites for the meringue on top of pie. After your custard has cooled, fill a baked shell of pie crust and bake in a very slow oven until the meringue is brown.

Remember the Time—

By Jack Casey

WHEN Corbett fought Fitzsimmons and the whole town was up in the air. And everybody thought Fitz would get murdered and men got into arguments and fought in the street and when the news came in that "Gentleman" Jim had been knocked out how flabbergasted yer was an' how yer Pa, who had a bet on Corbett, wasn't civil for a week.

The Floradora Sextette was famous and "Tell Me Pretty Maiden" was the song of the hour an' everybody hummed it and it was on nickel machines in drug stores an' yer used to love to drop a nickel in and hear it. Because besides hearin' it yer got a check for a soda.

Yer favorite soda was "Banana" an' yer favorite color was red an' yer was never so happy as when yer tie and socks matched or yer had yer Dad's big coral stickpin in the knot of your four-in-hand.

Men wore big round links in their detachable cuffs that showed a lady's head in ivory in black enamel or a dog's head carved from some brown substance? An' the links snapped together and the day yer found yer Pa's and busted one an' got the daylights whaled out of yer.

'N' the afternoon yer found yer father's box o' cigars hidden to reach his stiff-front Sunday shirts in his bureau drawer an' they was the kind that had the picture of an apple on the cover. An' how yer enjoyed one and was quite amazed at its size, but determined to be game an' smoked it out of the house with some matches and when yer got on High street yer lit it up.

'N' everything was lovely an' yer was puffin' serenely away, havin' snacked by the Fire Earn unobserved, when around a distant corner wheeled yer Aunt Nellie an' yer heart went "kerplunk."

An' yer shoved the lighted cigar in yer overcoat pocket 'n' started to run. An' when yer got 'round a corner yer yanked it out an' discovered yer had burnt a hole in the pocket.

An' that night how yer lied when yer Ma discovered it and mentioned it to yer in the bath. But yer know better than admit, as a bath is no place to confess anything to one who could wield a strap like yer Ma could.

NO GOOD BY CROSS LOOKS.

Why do you allow that disagreeable expression to set and overshadow your face so many hours of each day?

Isn't it possible for you to be earnest and interested without that clouded expression?

You need not smile all the time, that would be too much, but why go to the other extreme and look cross and ugly so much of the time?

If you consider it necessary for you to cultivate such an expression in order to be considered thoughtful and thoroughly interested and you want to impress the fact that hard business rules your place instead of matters of a lighter nature, you are choosing the wrong way to make this impression.

Workers who must be put under the lash to get anything accomplished are not valuable.

Get rid of the employes who will not work unless you force them to dig in for it takes too much out of you and the result is not worth the effort.

Flapper Fairy Tales

Ludwig—Would you like to have the engagement ring my mother had or shall I go to one of the Fifth avenue stores and get a $500 sparkler for you?

Georgette—Oh, I'd much rather have your mother's; it would be so much more romantic!

Medbury Says---

By John P. Medbury

POLAR bear rugs are coming back into style again. A polar bear makes a darn fine rug providing you take the bear out of it first.

YOU might just as well kill the animal in the first place because a lot of apartments are so cold that the polar bear would freeze to death anyway.

SOME millionaires have the whole bear family made into rugs for their living rooms. This is very unkind, no cub wants to see his father stretched out on the floor.

ONE guy came home intoxicated and picked the bear's claw up in his hand and started petting it. He thought it was his wife and told her she ought to cut her finger nails.

WHEN he received no answer he looked at the face, saw the scowl and asked her what she was sore about.

THEN he kissed the bear good-night and went upstairs to bed.

HE knew that the only time his wife didn't argue with him in the house was when she wasn't at home.

IT'S really cruel to kill those animals for rugs. Can you imagine how a polar bear feels to get down on a cake of ice and wake up in front of a fireplace.

ONE woman bought a Polar bear from Alaska, where there's nothing but snow and sleet, and then accuses the butler of spoiling the bear by spilling some ice water on his back.

THEIR fur never spoils and you can make sure of this by leaving the bear in it.

OF course it would be out of the question to take them into your parlor while they're alive. They'd still make good rugs but they might not want to lie down when you did.

HOWEVER, a bear bite would not prove fatal to one of your guests, providing he bit you.

BUT when a bear is starved he's not going to ask for any identification. If he's hungry he doesn't care whether you live there or not.

SO girls if you're married, go out and buy a bear rug. It's wonderful to have something around the house that has quit growing.

His Reason

The farmer drove out of the way to let him pass.

"A moment later along came a young fellow on a bicycle, who cried to the farmer to let him pass.

"Hey, there! Pull out and let me by!"

"Oh, I dunno if I've in any hurry!" the farmer replied.

Railroad Issues Set New 1923 Highs in Firm Market; Renewal Money, 4 1-2%

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

The influential directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey have refused the men's request for higher wages.

Prices are heading upwards.

* * *

Questions relating to the cost of living and to wages are likely before long to claim some of the attention now monopolized by the French seizure of Germany's vitally important industrial territory in the Ruhr basin.

* * *

One consoling consideration is that France's aggression will serve to hasten some settlement or some fixed policy following Germany's four years shilly shallying. It may be that France will insist upon campaigning upon German soil for quite a period. Indeed, that at the moment is the outlook. But at least it will do something to relieve the day-to-day unsettlement, even if such a policy be fixed and Germany becomes obliged to offer some definite plan for making good part of the fiendishly wanton havoc she wrought upon industrial France and Belgium.

* * *

Be that as it may, it will pay us to devote earnest attention to handling our own business activities wisely.

* * *

They cannot hope to mark up prices without bringing on nation wide agitation for higher wages.

* * *

Will the rank and file of consumers consent to pay the still higher prices necessitated by fresh advances in wages?

* * *

It should not be overlooked that one-third of our population are not yet receiving for the fruit of their labors sufficient to enable them to purchase normal quantities of goods even at present prices, and this plight of our farmers and their dependents is not very different from the position most salaried people would find themselves in.

* * *

Again, higher prices and higher wages will have a distinct bearing upon the continuance of the current boom in building, upon abnormal expenditures by the railroads and upon other forms of activity.

* * *

I talked the other day with the president of a large manufacturing company and these sentences from him will interest you: "We need another large factory building; we have investigated very thoroughly what it would cost. We have finally decided not to build just now. We will wait a year and see what happens."

* * *

If America enters upon a period of soaring prices and rising wages, here is likely to be the outcome:

There will be a nation-wide rush to buy goods. In fact, symptoms of such a coming rush are already detected here and there. The latest mercantile reviews declare that the January scramble for merchandise is quite abnormal.

* * *

Have you ever seen a fly put into a tube of oxygen? It has a glorious time, a most intoxicating, exhilarating, beautiful time, for a while. Then it collapses and dies.

Reckless inflation at this stage would act upon business exactly as oxygen acts upon the fly. The boom might be a rip-snorter for a brief period. But then it would certainly collapse.

* * *

Keep your eyes open for any important agitation for modification of the immigration laws.

Keep your ears to the farm, so to speak.

* * *

If President Harding announces definitely and finally that he will not call Congress together in special session, that will help sentiment in high financial and business circles.

* * *

Of course, international events will have a bearing upon the well being of industry and employment in this country. My own analysis is, however, that bad news would have nearly as much effect here as good news would have. In other words, I believe our men of affairs have largely, if not wholly, discounted the worst that is likely to happen abroad and that really favorable developments would have a most helpful influence alike in the security markets, in the grain markets, in the cotton markets, in many important manufacturing lines and on our whole situation.

To my mind, better news is just as likely to come as worse news.

* * *

For the moment, we are clearly in a buyers' market, and it should be more profitable to over-buy than under-buy, for the time being. But when any commodity has had such a drastic rise as cotton has had and crude rubber has had, it is well to remember that prices can fall as well as rise. It is safest always to buy such things as have not been boomed.

GAINS BEST FOR LOW-PRICED CARRIERS

Numerous railroad issues set new 1923 highs in a firm market on the New York Stock Exchange today. Money renewed at 4½ per cent. Gains were best among the low-priced carriers.

New highs for the year were made by Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Lackawanna, Western Maryland, St. Louis & San Francisco, St. Paul common and preferred, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific preferred and Pittsburgh & West Virginia.

Rock Island, Baltimore & Ohio and St. Paul preferred showed gains of more than 2 points.

Federal Trade Commission's week-end declaration that merger of Bethlehem, Lackawanna and Midvale steel companies was in restraint of trade had little effect. Beth. and Midvale yielded only fractions.

California Petroleum, United Fruit and May Department Stores made good gains. Kresge broke four points.

Moderate improvement also was noted in American Smelting, Reynolds Tobacco, Goodrich and Corn Products. Steel & Tube preferred extended its loss to 4¼ points and Allied Chemical and Royal Dutch each dropped one.

Foreign exchanges were heavy. Demand sterling dropped one cent to 4.63¼ and French francs dropped 8½ points to 6.20 cents. German marks dropped to .0031 cents, or approximately 32,250 to the American dollar, another new low record.

SAVINGS DEPOSITS IN BANKS INCREASE

Savings deposits in 880 banks reporting to Federal Reserve Board representing 77 per cent. of country's savings banks aggregated $5,837,363,000 Jan. 1, 1922, and $6,282,172,000 Jan. 1, 1923, increase of $444,809,000.

DUTCH SHELL STRIKES VENEZUELAN GUSHER

Boston Notes

ORPHEUM CIRCUIT, INC., earnings are given as increasing month by month. Impending economies are expected to swell income further.

UNITED SHOE'S increase in lease rentals is expected alone to yield equivalent of more than $2 a share on present outstanding stock.

ATCHISON has announced reduced rates to Pacific Coast points from Chicago on some commodities, manufactured principally in Chicago district.

WICKWIRE-SPENCER Steel Corporation is still behind its orders, though operating day and night. Worcester plants of company are running with about 3,500 men, but in spite of this unusually large force orders are being refused through inability to produce goods fast enough.

EASTERN STEAMSHIP'S two new passenger and freight steamers lately ordered from Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation will cost over $3,650,000.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & Manufacturing Co., which recently acquired the Savage Arms plant at Sharon, Pa., is using it for storage purposes.

CONSOLIDATED Textile's complete recovery will of necessity be somewhat protracted. New management believes that right corrective remedies are being applied and that return to earning power will follow.

INTERNATIONAL CEMENT has recently purchased valuable Bonner Springs, Kan., property which will probably not be a contributor of earnings in 1923, but, as in the case of Knickerbocker, will be brought up to finest condition of efficiency and at no increase in capital.

GREENFIELD Tap & Die's foreign business, with steady rise in pound sterling, has shown favorable increase.

INTERNATIONAL Paper, to insure ample supplies of raw material, now has approximately $20,000,000 invested in its wood pile.

CALUMET & Hecla companies — parent and subsidiaries—are chipping costs every month.

GENERAL Electric Co. should show earnings for 1922 approximating $15 a share on 1,756,247 shares of regular stock outstanding November 30. In 1921 net after depreciation and taxes was equivalent to $12.50 a share

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—Our own guess is that narrowness of movement in the rails means accumulation and in the industrials, especially those which are near their highest prices in several years, means distribution.

BOND OFFERINGS OFF FOR WEEK

By MONROE ROBERTS.

(Copyright, 1923, By Cosmopolitan News Service.)

New York, Jan. 29.—While the offering of new bonds during the past week made a sharp drop from the preceeding three weeks of the new year, the aggregate was well up to the average of the last six months. The most prominent new issues of the week were in connection with financing of the two prominent steel companies, Bethlehem with $25,000,000 and Republic, $10,000,000.

The aggregate for the week was $53,000,000, of which the industrial group made up $47,000,000; State and municipal, $15,000,000; public utility and railroad, $10,000,000 each.

The $10,000,000 railroad issue was in connection with the financing of the Northern Pacific Railway; the public utility issues, the financing of the Memphis Power and Light Co. and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., and the largest municipal issue the new $5,000,000 4¼ per cent. gold bonds of the State of California.

In the listed bond market the most prominent feature was the heavy selling and the steady decline of the bonds of the French government both issues of which reached new low prices for all time. The 8s sold as low as 91 and 7½s as low as 88½.

New York Stock Exchange represents more wealth than any other institution in the United States.

Stocks and bonds listed on the Exchange, not including stocks without par value, aggregate $52,347,304,000, as follows:

Stocks (par val.)	$18,055,287,000
Bonds (rail, industrial, etc.)	17,740,017,000
Liberty bonds	16,552,000,000
	$52,347,304,000
Shares (no par value)	96,320,032

Assuming the non-par value stocks had a par value of $50 a share, or $4,816,001,600, total of all stocks and bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange would exceed $57,000,000,000.

SAFEST SECURITY.

To B. L. L., Roxbury—Who would want to meet an American citizen who would hesitate to agree that Liberty and other United States government bonds are the safest securities known to the world today? Just one qualification must be made. Government bonds in coupon form are so easily negotiable that they should be guarded against theft with the greatest care. From Civil War days to the present time the Treasury Department has repeatedly made it clear the government can grant no relief to the rightful owner of stolen bonds. An innocent purchaser for value acquires good title to coupon bonds even though the specific certificates have been reported as lost or stolen.

The case is entirely different with a government bond in registered form. A registered bond cannot be legitimately functioned with impunity, even though the rightful owner is ill, insane, helpless or dead. A bond registered on its face in the name of the original owner is not negotiable or of value to any holder unless and until it has been properly assigned and properly witnessed. Proof of forgery will suffice for the Treasury Department to reinstate the rightful owner to his original position, and the loss will be collected from some one who handled the bond or presented it to the Treasury for transfer.

JERSEY STANDARD OIL.

To I. I., Saratoga street—November 15, 1922, directors of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey formally declared the stock dividend on the basis of four new common shares for each $25 par value common stock outstanding, payable December 20 to holders of record November 25. Directors also declared usual quarterly dividends of $1.25 a share on the common and of $1.75 a share on the preferred, both payable December 15 to holders of record November 25.

The stockholders of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey had previously authorized an increase in the common stock of that company from $110,000,000 to $625,000,000. This action permitted the declaration of a 400 per cent. stock dividend against the company's surplus assets.

BRADSTREET'S FINDS TRADE BROADENING

Bradstreet's weekly review says: While there is considerable talk of conservatism in buying, this, by the way, generally meaning for more distant positions, there is unmistakable evidence that domestic trade in wholesale jobbing lines is broadening out, while manufacture and industry, for the time being, seem to have assumed leadership so far as cheerful reports are concerned.

It might be noted, however, that even collections are slightly better. Compared with a year ago at this time, all branches of trade and industry are much more active and collections have improved.

Reports from industrial lines are, in fact, the best received since the Spring of 1920, whereas trade reports have yet some ground to gain before equalling the brisk business of last Autumn, if, indeed, it is possible for business at this period of the year to equal that of the Fall season.

In industry that activity is virtually country wide, this meaning building, mining, lumbering as well as ordinary factory operation, and labor is employed to an extent rare in midwinter.

Current export trade, though better than a year ago, is at least only mediocre, and available returns of last year's export details are in striking contrast with what is known to have been done in domestic lines.

Our export trade in foods showed a big decrease; foreign takings of our wheat for six months of the cereal year 1922-23 are heavily below the same period of 1921-22, and the best showing made among our exports in the cruder forms of American products, that by raw cotton, has been possible because of higher prices offsetting a lessened volume of export.

TAKES PROFIT OF 7 POINTS IN COTTON

New York dispatch says: "The Streets biggest speculator is reported to have sold out a long line of cotton, which at one time aggregated 400,000 bales, at a seven-figure profit and to have now staggered the trade by promptly 'selling for the decline' almost as much."

BANK FIGURES SHOW SECURITIES SALES

Figures of 800 leading banks show sales of $80,000,000 corporation securities in second half 1922, against increase in such holdings of $180,000,000 in first half. Increase in Liberty Bond holdings was about $523,000,000 and in Victory notes and Treasury certificates about $365,000,000.

REAL ESTATE HAPPENINGS

Twenty-two house lots fronting on Parker Hill avenue, Iroquois street, Darling street and Oswald street, in the Parker Hill section of Roxbury, have been acquired by the Robert B. Brigham Hospital in anticipation of future needs. The total area of the plot is 73,463 square feet.

The land acquired in this transaction is situated on the top of the hill and has a commanding view of the entire city and harbor. Many of the lots were sold last Fall at auction by John C. Kiley & Co., who represented the sellers in this transaction. The buyers were represented by Meredith & Grew. No definite use for the land has been determined upon as yet. It may be used for a home for nurses or it may be kept as an open space to protect the view over the city from the main hospital building.

Parker Hill is one of the landmarks of Boston and holds an important place in the history of Roxbury. The north side of the hill was originally owned by John Parker and in the Revolutionary War, during the siege of Boston, the Connecticut regiments were encamped on this land.

HUNTINGTON AVE. SALES.

Two four-story apartment houses and 5,740 square feet of land at Nos. 124 and 128 Huntington avenue, opposite Mechanics Building, have been sold by Frederick L. McGowan to Elsie L. Mulvey, who reconveyed to James F. Farmer. Of the total assessed value of $85,700, the land bears $46,000.

CONGRESS STREET PROPERTY.

Caroline M. Bird of Framingham has bought of William J. Stober the mercantile property at Nos. 223-225 Congress street, Boston. The assessors' valuation is $40,000, of which $30,200 is on the 1,162 square feet of land. Benjamin C. Tower was the broker.

TREMONT STREET DWELLING.

Charles H. Length has sold to James O'Keefe the four-story brick dwelling at No. 544 Tremont street. The total valuation is $10,700, of which $5,700 is on the 1,530 square feet of land. The new owner will remodel for stores and apartments. James H. and Charles J. Brennan were the brokers in the transaction.

CROW POINT, HINGHAM.

W. J. Stober has acquired from Caroline M. Bird, wife of R. W. Bird of Framingham, title to the Summer estate located at the corner of Page and Howe streets and Wheton avenue, Crow Point, Hingham, overlooking the ocean. The property includes a large dwelling and about one-half acre of land, assessed for a total of $11,500. Benjamin C. Tower negotiated the sale.

TRAVEL BRIEFS

NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

Co-incident with the arrival of A. J. Dickinson, passenger traffic manager of the Great Northern Railway, accompanied by M. M. Hubbert, general eastern passenger agent at New York, announcement is made that the round-trip excursion rates for the Summer season of 1923, to Glacier National Park, will continue the same as last season, $53 for the round trip to Chicago. This means that practically the same rates from Boston will prevail as last season, namely $120.16 for the round trip.

Glacier National Park, according to Mr. Dickinson, is not only the most unique of all our great national parks, but the most magnificent as well. Only three nights on the sleeper from Boston, it is admittedly the wildest part of America, and offers to the tourist probably the greatest variety of scenic views to be had anywhere in the world.

In order to induce Easterners to visit the park, the Great Northern honors the low excursion rate tickets on the famous "Oriental Limited," whose equipment consists of the most modern, solid steel, Pullman drawing room, compartment, observation sleeping cars.

Glacier National Park is unique, also, in that it is one of the very few national parks located directly on the main line of a big railroad. The famous Glacier Park Hotel, which accomodates 400 guests, and in size is nearly as large as the National Capitol at Washington, is practically adjacent to the station. This hotel is fashioned out of timbers taken from the big trees of the Northwest. Some of the logs are forty-two feet high, several are five feet in diameter and extend from basement to roof.

Fifty-six miles north, in the very heart of the park, is another similar hostelry, "Many Glacier Hotel," on Lake McDermott. This lake is set down in perhaps the grandest panorama in all the Montana Rockies. Nowhere else even in Glacier Park are the sunsets so gorgeous. It is also the focal point from which trails spread fan-wise in all directions, over Swift Current Pass Trail, over the famous Logan Pass Trail, to the Triple Divide, a three-sided mountain from whose summit water flows north to Hudson Bay, south to the Gulf of Mexico, and west to the Pacific, in all, over 300 miles of trail, every mile of which presents a constant succession of scenic surprises.

For tourists en route to the Pacific coast, and for those who can spare time for only a brief stay at the Park, the Glacier Park Hotel and Transportation Co. have arranged a standard four-day tour by auto and launch which includes visits to many of the most interesting points at a cost as low as $41.50.

For the camper or hiker who wants to "rough it," the hotel company provides complete outfits at reasonable rates. A party of five persons on a trip of ten days or more can be outfitted, provided with two guides, cook, pack horse and saddle horse for each person, bedding, camp utilities, everything, in fact, except food, for $12 per day each.

Over 600 saddle horses are maintained, providing ample opportunity for those who wish to avoid the more formal tours, to spend whatever time is at their disposal in leisurely investigation of the unparalleled grandeurs of Glacier Park.

Beautifully illustrated folders and complete information regarding rates, reservations and other details may be had by applying to John H. Kenney, traveling passenger agent of the Great Northern Railway, at Room 16, Old South Building, Boston.

FLORIDA TRAVEL AT PEAK.

If you have any intention of spending any part of February in Florida, make your reservation at once. This is the advice of the passenger representative of the lines entering Florida, whose principal worries at this time are due to the difficulty of obtaining accommodations for the unprecedented number of New Englanders who are going South.

For many days in February cars have been booked so solid that not even an upper berth is available. Extra cars have been requisitioned by the Seaboard Air Line Railroad in an endeavor to handle the traffic offered, but even these, on some days, have been sold solid in less than twenty-four hours after having been opened.

ON CARIBBEAN CRUISE.

Among the passengers who sailed Saturday on the Calamares of the United Fruit line for the Caribbean cruise to Cuba, Jamaica, Panama and Costa Rica, were the following Bostonians: Mr. and Mrs. F. W. McDowell, Miss Florence H. Rose, Mrs. William F. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Witt, and Mr. and Mrs. Coleman J. Joel.

WINTER SPORTS BULLETIN.

At Conway, N. H., Poland Springs, Me., North Conway, N. H., Waterville, Me., and Whitefield, N. H., conditions are good for all Winter sports.

At Auburn, Me., Glen and Jackson, N. H., Lewiston, Me., and Rockland, Me., conditions are good for all sports except skating.

At Augusta, Me., Brownfield, Me., and Portland, Me., there is good skiing, snowshoeing, sleighing and coasting.

ATTEND MARDI-GRAS.

The local office of the Southern Pacific Lines reports a number of advance bookings for transportation via Southern Pacific steamships from New York to New Orleans, for the annual mardi-gras season at New Orleans.

The festivities commence the evening of February 8 with the gorgeous tableaux and ball of the Knights of Momus. On Saturday, February 10, the first of a series of carnival dances will be given at the St. Charles Hotel. The finale is on Tuesday, February 13, with the day parade of Rex, followed by the grand ball at the Athenaeum and the third mardi-gras carnival dance at the St. Charles hotel.

Two Kinds of Bankers—Two Kinds of Banks

One Hundred and Ten Years Separate Them

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The greatest bank in America, the greatest, with no government support, in the world, is the National City Bank of New York, more than 110 years old. When it started, New York's leading merchants and bankers lived in Wall Street, had their houses there, or a few minutes away. One picture in this column shows the old bank as it originally was, with its first president.

Every business day for more than 110 years the National City Bank in its various establishments, in Wall Street and out, has been doing business.

HERE YOU SEE COLONEL SAMUEL OSGOOD, FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE CITY BANK, AND HIS BANKING HOUSE IN OLD NEW YORK

This is the old-fashioned business man who walked down the steps in front of his bank at the same hour every day, knew everybody by sight, went slowly to his house a little way down the street, perhaps pumped a drink out of the hand-pump on the sidewalk. There was no city water supply in those days.

A quiet, peaceful old gentleman was Samuel Osgood, first president of the world's greatest bank. In the Revolution he had been a good fighter. His reputation for honor was high. When Congress made him Commissioner of the Board of Treasury the entire Legislature of Massachusetts, where he was born, voluntarily went on his bond, something never done for anybody else.

Observe the kind of man that runs the world's biggest bank today.

No gentle, peaceful life he leads, but fighting all the world—fighting for business and for MORE business, studying and fighting conditions in Europe and problems at home.

When President Samuel Osgood wanted financial information from Europe he would write a letter and get an answer—if fortunate—in about two months. A sailing boat would carry the letter slowly back, men on horseback or in coaches would take it to and from the ship.

CHARLES EDWIN MITCHELL, ACTUAL PRESIDENT OF THE WORLD'S BIGGEST BANK

When Mitchell, now president, wants information from Europe and is in a hurry, the question goes under the water by cable or through the air by wireless, and the answer comes back while he waits, often in less than half an hour.

There is not much time for shaking hands with everybody in modern banking, no time for pumping your own water from the sidewalk pump. No possibility of knowing the millions of people that crowd the streets.

The best asset of a modern banker is a powerful fighting jaw; next best and absolutely necessary, is knowledge of financial, industrial business and political conditions all over the world.

As with banking, so in all branches of American enterprise. Power, fighting quality, knowledge of world conditions are necessary.

If Samuel Osgood could come back and see today the bank

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

BROADENING THE MIND

By Bruno Lessing

A "Do you think the study of nature broadens the mind?" Yes, I am sure it does, but—

The man who takes a stroll through the woods to enjoy the quiet and the fresh air is not necessarily studying nature. His mind may be a perfect blank—a rather enjoyable condition, at times, to be sure—but it is not becoming broadened.

Solitude and quiet are, of course, an admirable stimulant to the process of thinking. Some people find their ideal solitude and quiet in an impenetrable forest. Others find it in a garret or a library. If they derive intellectual benefit from being alone and free from noise, it is because they have learned how to think. Which means, they have stored their mind with certain facts and fancies and know how to weave and embroider them into those new patterns which we call "original thought." Which, after all, is the only kind of thought that is worth while.

The mind becomes broadened through the constant exercise of the thinking faculty. You know how the daily use of dumb-bells or Indian clubs or any form of calisthenics will develop your muscle. Just so do study and thinking develop the mind.

To ramble through the woods in idle enjoyment, under the delusion that you are studying nature and improving your mind—well, you might just as well watch a prize fight and feel that you are developing your muscles.

Lights LureFish in Norway

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 29.—The Norwegian Mercantile and Shipping Gazette states that an experiment is being made in catching fish with the aid of electric light—the first time such a method has been adopted in Norwegian waters.

There is a great quantity of bristling is Hardanger Fjord, but the fish lie at a depth too great for them to be caught in nets. Thor Egeland has equipped an expedition to endeavor to attract them to the surface by means of electric light reflected from the deck of a steamer.

Armenians in Turkey

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial entitled, "No Land for Armenians," contains a statement which is misleading. You say, "We refuse to accept Chinese or Japanese here, therefore, we can hardly tell the Mohammedan Turks that they must accept Christians on their soil." There is no parallel between the position of the Chinese and Japanese in the United States, and the Armenians in Turkey. It is a historic fact that the Armenians lived on their native land over 2,000 years before the Turkish invasion. It is to be regretted that a leading daily paper should circulate (no doubt unintentionally) such a misleading statement at a time when the fate of the Armenian people is at stake.

Somerville Service

Editor Boston American:

I would like to take a little space in your paper to protest the miserable service given West Somerville; that is, the Highland and Somerville avenue lines to and from Lechmere square, and the way cars are held back after leaving unloading platform until station is packed full. I, with many others, arrived at said station at 5:12 p. m., January 18, and after seeing four East Cambridge cars come and go saw two for Highland avenue with trailers at unloading berth. After moving a short distance they stopped for five minutes, apparently to be sure of a load and as five trains had come in from the city the station was then jammed. At 5:35 we got under way, crowded worse than cattle. Would like to add that no beat is available on these cars either night or morning.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally

Sends a Dollar

Editor Helping Hand:

Please find enclosed $1 from a poor blind seventy-eight-year-old woman. I do feel so sorry for Miss Catherine Thompson that I want her to have this dollar.

E. A. B.

ED. NOTE — Sometimes we think that old people have the softest hearts. The dollar will be forwarded to the City Hospital for Miss Thompson, whose story in the American a few days ago seems to have touched many hearts.

Kittens to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a shut-in. Do you know of anyone who has any records they would sell, give or lend me. I have three lovely kittens to give away. They are seven weeks old and housebroken.

MRS. A. L.

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like very much to get a little girl to adopt about five years old as a playmate for my little girl. I could give her a good home and a good education.

MRS. A. M. P.

Popular Songs

Editor Helping Hand:

I hope I may find, through the agency of your fine column, a worthy person or family, perhaps a disabled soldier or cripple, who would enjoy some old phonograph (disc) records. The majority of them are in good condition and are taking up precious room when they might be giving enjoyment to some household. Most of these are old popular song hits of a few years ago and a few instrumental pieces.

Boxing Gloves

Editor Helping Hand:

Has anyone an old pair of boxing gloves that are not too far gone that they would exchange for an official American League ball, warranted, with cork centre.

In Distress

Would some kind person let me have enough of any kind of home work or addressing to do so I can support my sick husband and child? I am willing to try anything that can be done at home. I am a box maker, but cannot leave my child and husband alone days.

MRS. L. M.

ED. NOTE — Courage of this kind should not go unanswered.

Lost His Dog

Editor Helping Hand:

I am boy 14 years old. I sell the Boston American mornings and evenings. I lost my pet dog and would like to get a young dog for my paper route. I would give it a good home in the country with the best of care.

Laundries Hard on Shirts

LONDON, Jan. 29.—A bundle of cotton threads resembling engineers' waste, exhibited at a meeting of the National Association of Outfitters, was stated to be all that was left of an American "silk" shirt. Only the collar band and buttons were intact.

The shirt was bought in New York, and its wearer, on a visit to this country, had it washed for the first time in an English laundry.

It was suggested by a member that the manufacturers of the shirt never intended it to be washed in other than American water.

HEART AFFAIRS OF MR. HOHENZOLLERN AND MR. TROTZKY

By Herbert Kaufman

Leon Trotzky, who was cadging beers and borrowing carfare in Harlem when that pale ghost in Holland could terrorize world exchange with a word, has dropped his rabid sans-culotte of a wife and taken another. Which is very important.

The French, whose history was largely written in the boudoir, understand that men manage the world—and that women manage the men.

Hubert Menges, who at eighty-six a gay lass of sixty should begin to know better, believes that he can manage his daughter. Yesterday, Mary, flapper of sixty, had him in court. The complaint cites cruelty and spanking. She wants to stay out at night and do and see things. Youth will be served. What are threescore years if the heart is not an hourglass?

Certainly Mrs. Henrietta Turret at fivescore-and-five wouldn't consider Mary too old for self-determination. Mrs. Turret just left Pittsburgh for Atlantic City to attend a wedding. Next year she's going to Germany.

Here are two persons, at least, who don't subscribe to the Osler or Mussolini conception of age limit.

Mrs. McCormick Goes Soul Hunting

Once more Mary Langdon Baker, obsessed with a notion that her matrimonial fusses are of the slightest interest in America, disclaims all intention of marrying Alliater McCormick. She manifestly needs psycho-analysis, not newspaper comment.

Also once more, Mrs. Rockefeller-McCormick, who is a psycho-analyst and has extended her practice to beasts—that is her reason for founding the Chicago Zoological Park. But getting nearer to animals, we are expected to reach the human soul. If Mrs. Rockefeller-McCormick will use more of her wealth to provide hospitals and help widows or endow a few acres of model tenements, human souls will give her an answering thrill that no zoo can ever furnish.

Homeless Children for Childless Homes

A veritable wave of starved motherlove is sweeping the city. Childless homes are seeking homeless children. One family has adopted three orphans at Acrak.

God's dividend on such wealth. And on the smaller investments in humanity that speed across seas to little refugees seeking bread and shelter at the doors of Greece and through all the gaunt reaches of desolated Europe.

Lord Armstrong Moves Into a Cottage

Peace likewise counts her victims, some of them in very high places. Lord Armstrong, contractor extraordinary to Mars, head of Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., gun makers and shipbuilders, and probably foremost beneficiary of the last war, is not in residence at Craigside, his border castle.

Reduced armaments and naval limitations, together with the draining taxes of England, have forced him to such straits that he must live in one of his own cottages.

War doesn't pay—anybody. The scale of modern conflict is too enormous, too far-reaching to profit even victors. The immensity of inevitable reparations compels adversaries to persist until exhausted. No one generation can hope to meet the losses.

Germany, to wipe out exacted indemnities, must remain in a national penitentiary for decades. France faces deficits that her unborn will not see wiped out.

A Bungle All Along the Line

In 1906, with Harrimann, Hill and Ripley up and doing, American railways showed peak earnings and peak efficiency. Farms were cheap, freight rates low and competition compelled service.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, ineffective bumper between public pocket and railroad profits, now announces 121 per cent. increase in casualties for three months in 1922. Intelligence is lacking in its legislation or slacking in capital and labor if we can't resume standards established sixteen years ago.

London Treats 'Em Rough

The hound who beats his blind wife finds a rival scoundrel in the father who sent for a crippled boy and abandoned him to wander homeless and hungry around New York for the past three days.

Beasts with which Mrs. McCormick is experimenting will essay more soul to the pound. London has a better cure than jail for delinquent parents, dope sellers, bullies and thieves.

There are no crime waves in King George's town—not one case of robbery with violence figures in the old Bailey calendar. The whip's the only thing for felons.

that he started to look over that bank's statement, totalling a thousand millions of dollars, his brain would reel, and he would say, "Put me back carefully in the grave."

Business men do not live as peacefully today as they did 110 years ago when President Osgood met every depositor face to face and discussed the end of the war of 1812, the year when his bank started.

How will it be 110 years from now? Who will run the banks, how big will they be, what will Wall Street and all New York look like? We don't know. But of this you may be sure. The changes between 1923 and 2033 will be even greater than those between 1813 and 1922. "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be."
